A R - T I M E B A S I S CLARES WAR,

With headlines seared on the memory of every American, the DYNAMO '42, tells the story in word and picture of these fateful times. For students of Chattanooga High, we here present the most memorable year of our school days . . . America's entrance into World War II . . . and Chattanooga High on a War-Time Basis.

Chattanooga High School, in its sixty-third year since the first class was graduated, has developed year after year into a modern, up-to-date, outstanding educational institution. As it now stands with Wyatt, McDonald, and Trimble Halls, and the new concrete stadium, Chattanooga High is a far cry from the frame building on College Hill where the school first opened its doors for the betterment and training of future leaders over sixty years ago.

In 1896 the original building was destroyed by fire, after which classes were held at the University building. A year later a lot was purchased where Dickinson Junior High now stands, and the class of 1906 became the first to graduate from the East Eighth Street school. Increasing growth of the student body again changed the location, and we left East Eighth Street to assume our present position.

The ADMINISTRATION

With Principal Creed F. Bates in the armed forces, Acting Principal W. P. Selcer led Chattanooga High School successfully through its first trying year of World War II. Admirable co-operation from the faculty and student body made the leader's difficult job an easier one than it might have been.

High morale, willingness to work or fight, and a seriousness heretofore unknown in High School, characterized the attitude of Chattanooga High, as the school prepared to graduate future soldiers and war workers. Following the advice of teachers and leaders in civilian and military circles, the students decided to complete their secondary schooling before entering the armed forces or taking jobs.

W. T. Robinson, Superintendent of Schools, one-time principal of Chattanooga High School, talks over educational matters with Commissioner T. H. McMillan. Since Commissioner McMillan was a teacher here before joining the City Commission, both are intensely interested in the activities of Chattanooga High School.

AMERICA DECLARES WAR; U. S. WILL WIN—F. D. R.

NEXT 10 NEWS

By ALBERT HENDERSON

I T IS a strange experience to come out of a theater where one has just seen glories of war and to learn, on the sidewalk, that America is again at war—and this time with a power that is stronger for a native. Tomorrow, when the sun rises, the world will know that the United States has entered the war against Japan.

Naval Supremacy Claimed by Japan

U.S. Fleet Reported Beaten; Nippon Says Its Sea Forces Remain Intact

MANILA, Tuesday, Dec. 9 (Official Radio Picked Up by the Associated Press).—The Japanese asserted today they had won naval supremacy over the United States in the Pacific, claiming by official or unofficial reports the destruction of two American battleships and an aircraft carrier and the downing of six cruisers.

These were the principal results of the first shock of their attack on Pearl Harbor.

MANILA, Dec. 9 (AP).—The edition which carried the report today in Manila was the first to be published.

MANILA, Dec. 9 (AP).—Japanese war planes were seen today in the Philippines and the United States.

WHERE WAR IS PLACING IN THE PACIFIC

Japanese aircraft reported today in the Philippines and the United States. The United States reported an enemy plane shot down today over the Pacific.

House Also Backs Move; Casualties In Japanese Raid on Hawaii 3,000

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 (AP).—The United States declared war against Japan today in a unanimous vote of Congress in which President Roosevelt's request for a declaration was unanimously cheered by Congress.

The Senate vote was unanimous, 82 to 0.

The Students

The SENIORS

Right to left: Third-term President Tom Caldwell leads the discussion of plans with Secretary Kathryn Forrester, Vice-President Anita Hallmark, and Treasurer Frank Fuller in the home economics living room.

Ending their high school days with the joyful and all-important senior year, members of the Class of '42 made their last months at City High more than live up to the high traditions set by former students.

The Harvest Festival was colorful and hilarious as C. H. S. stepped out in gingham and overalls.

On the last school day before Christmas, the Seniors entertained children from the Vine Street Orphanage. An impressive program, spiced with dashes of cleverness, culminated in the entrance of Santa Claus mounted on a motorcycle. Throughout the day, it was difficult to tell which were the more delighted, the Seniors or the children.

In the presentation of a sophisticated comedy, "Fly Away Home," several members of the class exhibited their dramatic ability. The range of characters portrayed was unusually wide for a young cast, including an absent-minded professor, a middle-aged business man with a sense of humor, a middle-aged, scatterbrained woman, young lovers, and an adolescent boy.

Senior Day saw strange sights on the campus. There were many surprises as the Seniors laid bare their suppressed desires and ambitions. The day ended with a hilarious luncheon.

Graduation activities began with the Baccalaureate Service on Sunday, June 1. Mr. James Henley of Centenary Methodist Church addressed the Seniors, their families, and their friends.

Class Day followed upon the heels of the Senior Picnic. The history, prophecy, will, and poem were read. After the program, the Dynamo, Senior publication was distributed.

Commencement night came at last, and after a program reflecting the current world problems, the Class of '42 received their diplomas.

The JUNIORS

With their well-chosen officers and sponsor leading the way, next year's seniors, the Class of '43, showed themselves to be well prepared to lead the school when their turn comes.

The Juniors' major activity, publishing the Maroon and White, was in every way a success. Though sometimes a day late in "coming out," the paper was always full of the latest news and contained timely editorials and features. Strictly a Junior project, the Maroon and White was a financial as well as an editorial success.

Ever Since Eve, the Junior play, gave the class its first chance at real dramatics, and members of the cast represented their classmates well in a production which drew praise from all who were privileged to see it.

At the Senior Luncheon Junior girls served Seniors in the best of style after Junior boys had set up and decorated tables. Again the Juniors endeared themselves to the Seniors with a Junior-Senior party, the equal of any ever held at C. H. S. despite war restrictions on paper and other decorating materials.

Minor activities of this hard-working class included winning the City-Central football game ticket sale, sponsoring the Notre Dame football game, and holding the Baylor Stagette, after the Junior-sponsored Baylor basketball game.

With this enviable record behind them, the Juniors give promise of being one of the best classes that City High has ever had.

The SOPHOMORES

Accustoming themselves to life at High School in a surprisingly short time, the Class of '44 organized and elected such capable officers that they were able to carry on in spite of the loss of their sponsor in the middle of the year. With their new and very energetic sponsor, the Sophomores continued a very active first year at Chattanooga High School.

Working as hard as the upperclassmen, the Sophomores showed they could stick with the best of them. Not only that, the "babies" beat the "big-shots" at their own game by winning the Stunt Nite ticket sale. In addition, they sponsored the City-McCallie football game, played host to 9-A's at the middle of the year and again in the Spring. They also sent a program to all the junior high schools to create interest in their new school, C. H. S. Handbooks to guide the new students were published by the class, and some of its members prepared to take charge of the paper next year by working on the MAROON AND WHITE.

Finishing the year with a Sophomore party, members of the class found that they were really an integral part of High School life and decided that they were ready for anything that the coming years in High School might bring.

CHATTANOOGA HIGH

At left: Taking a "pop" test in English, a group of Sophomores concentrate deeply. The only course that every student must take all three years, English forms the backbone of the curriculum at Chattanooga High. Shown here are Anne Doughty, Jean Hall, Cora Sullivan, Charles Schenck, Leo Cole, Mary Clyde Jernigan, Ann Murrell, George Gross.

Top: Learning to care for children, a comparatively new subject, is rapidly becoming one of the most popular of the Home Ec courses. A modern, completely equipped nursery and fenced playground give the girls a chance to exercise all their talents and learn new methods in caring for children. The babies come from homes all over the city.

Below: Eating the food that they cooked themselves seems a pleasure to these girls in the Home Ec kitchen. Everything in the cooking classes is done by the latest methods with the newest of stoves, refrigerators, dishes, pans, and other utensils.

Above: America's future food producers, members of the agriculture classes, here learn the care of farm machinery. Other projects undertaken by the boys include planting and cultivating gardens, lawns, and farm crops. The newest farm methods are learned.

SCHOOL at WORK . . .

At left: Making their own clothes, Jane Lauter, Mary Alice Wimberly, and Frances McCarthy, as well as other girls in the sewing classes, learn to economize on materials while using their own patterns and designing and producing garments for themselves.

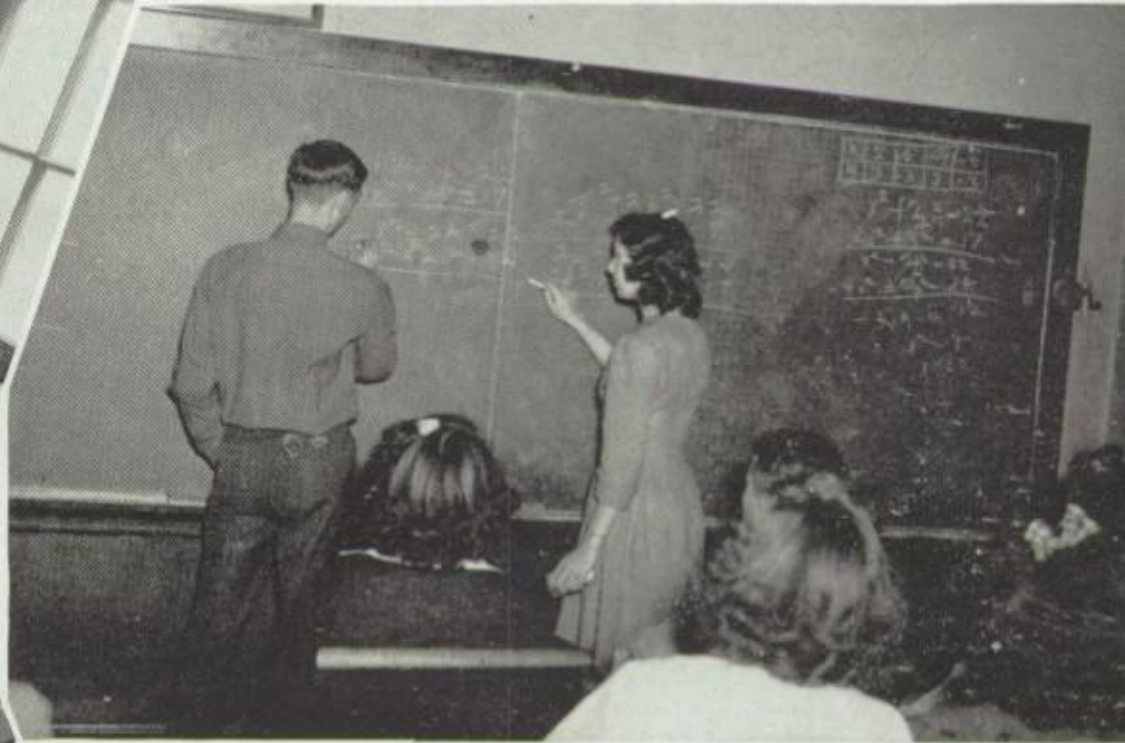

Below: Ira Pegues and Jean Arnold teach each other algebra in one of the many mathematics classes. Algebra, a very popular course with sophomores, forms the background for all higher mathematics in high school as well as college.

Below: Bachelors, they call them, learn to cook in the Ec classes for boys. And lucky enough, their teachers are boys make almost better than girls. "Women haters" here are Ed West, Bob Doo, Buddy Adams, John on, and Henry Nite.

Right: Studying hemisphere defense, members of a history class look at the strategic Panama Canal Zone. Future citizens learning about citizenship are James Hall, pointing; John Fitz, E. B. Williams, and Marion Smith.

Above: Charlotte McAmis is giving the biology department skeleton the thrill of his "life". Microscopes, laboratories, stuffed and preserved specimens all help the students learn about life.

come out of a theater where one has just seen ghosts

Naval Supremacy Claimed by Japan

Flot Reported Beaten; Nippon
Its Sea Forces Remain Intact

TOKYO, Tuesday, Dec. 9 (Official Radio Picked Up by the Associated Press).—The Japanese asserted today they had won naval supremacy over the United States in the Pacific, claiming by official or unofficial reports the destruction of two American battleships and an aircraft carrier and the downing of six bombers.

These were the principal results of the fleet clash of their claimed afternoon.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 (AP).—The United States declared war against Japan today in a unanimous session of congress in which President Roosevelt's request for a proclamation was unanimously endorsed by both houses.

The senate vote was unanimous, 82 to 0.

The house vote was unanimous, 417 to 0.

The declaration of war was made by President Roosevelt.

Technical Sergeant R. M. Proctor, Assistant P. M. S. and T., is completing his twenty-seventh year in the Army. Thirteen of these have been at Chattanooga High.

TRAINING for OFFENSE

Within the course of a few hours on December 8, 1941, the R. O. T. C. began to train leaders for the United States Army, in which lies the hope of defeating the Axis. In the past when our nation was engrossed in peace conferences and isolationism, the R. O. T. C. was not recognized for its worth. However, the cadet training has come to its own and will continue to do its best to preserve democracy. With changes in methods of fighting, defensive as well as offensive, instruction of the cadets has been altered to meet the new forms of warfare. Training in extended order has been supplemented with more work in the field and the class.

FIRST BATTALION

R. O. T. C.

Because of the war a new feature was added this year to the training program of the R. O. T. C. Out of each battalion the intelligence officer kept maps on the developments of the different fields of battle—the Libyan campaign, the war in Russia, the Philippines, and the recent Far Eastern theater of war. When the weather was unfavorable for outside work, these officers with the aid of the maps explained what had been done on the battle fields. In this way the cadets learned of new developments of the war and their effects.

First Battalion Officers and Sponsor: Battalion Commander Major Jimmy Kirkpatrick and Louise Hudson . . . Second row: Lt. Harry Lupher and Lt. James Brown.

With the completion of the stadium, in which a rifle range was built expressly for the R. O. T. C., progressive target practice was begun by the senior and junior cadets. As the students had already learned the theoretical part of correct rifle marksmanship, they were ready to begin actual firing on the range without any preliminaries.

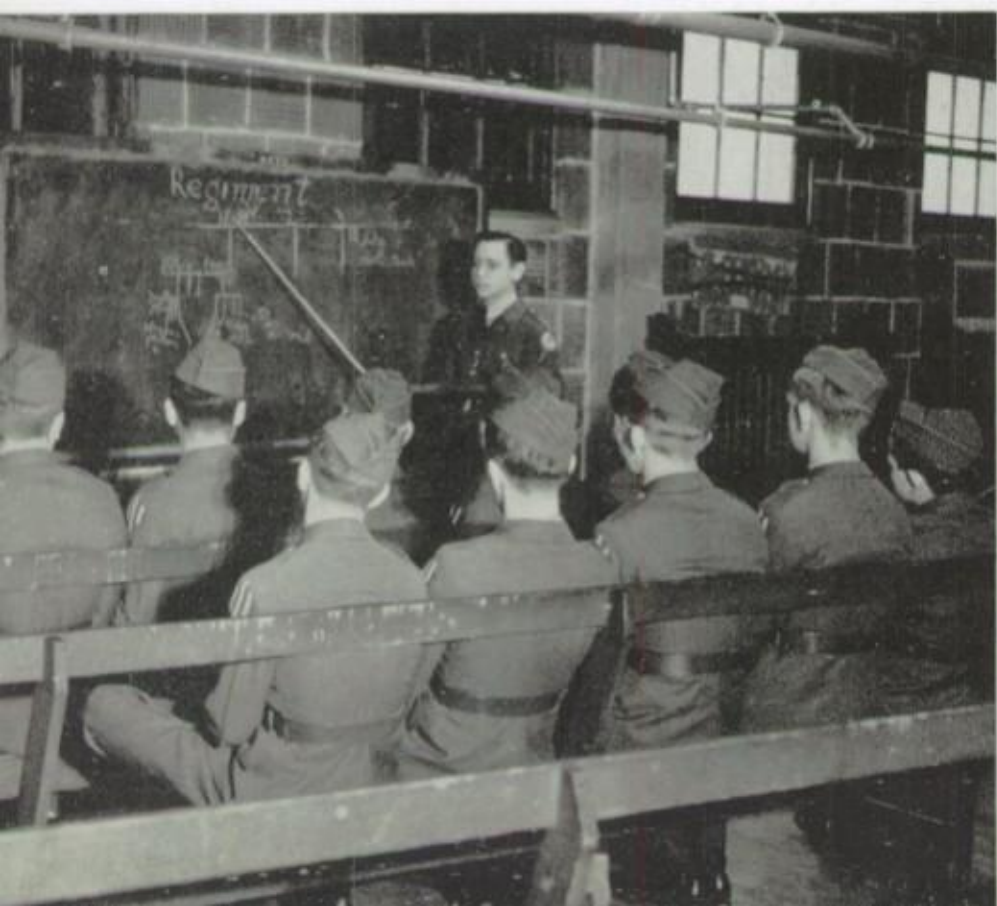

While military organization is not the most important instruction given to the cadet, the future soldier would do well to know the army thoroughly from the squad to the division. Simplification of control on the field of battle is the theme upon which our army is organized.

SECOND BATTALION R. O. T. C.

As in the Army, the R. O. T. C. has been placing greater emphasis on extended or battle formation of the troops. To have effective control of movements and speed in which these shall be carried out, it is necessary to have the officers trained in the theoretical part of infantry military organizations, use of infantry weapons, and battle formations, both defensive and offensive.

Each spring when the weather is favorable, battle problems are simulated, and a company at a time tackles the problem. In this way the officers as well as the other cadets learn first hand of actual battles in the best way, besides war itself.

The war has caused the R. O. T. C. to take on a job which does not come under the actual training program of the cadets. With the development of the airplane, during and after the World War I, has come the menace to human lives and to property. With the thought in mind that Chattanooga can possibly be bombed, our school appointed Lt.-Col. D. N. McMillan and Major Hunter Byington to set up a system which would keep down hysteria and consequently higher casualties among the student body. A number of fire stations were designated and four R. O. T. C. cadets appointed to man these stations.

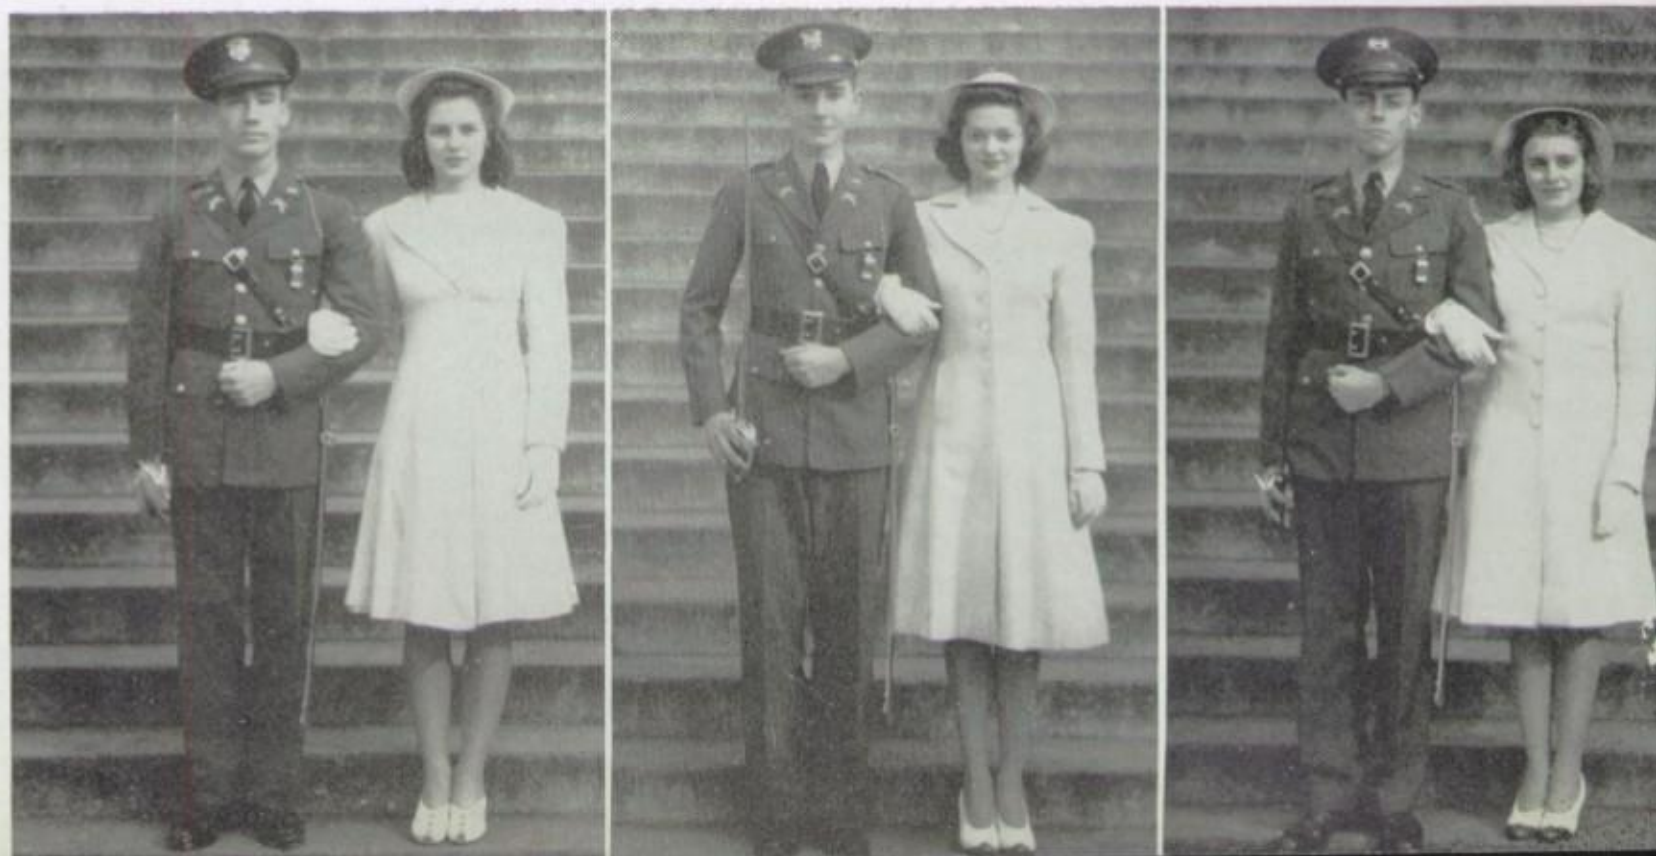

The gist of what a R. O. T. C. cadet receives at Chattanooga High School is this. He learns to take orders and follow his leader. He learns to respect those above him and his nation—its flag and anthem. He studies basic military training—field and theoretical. Finally, with the above that he has learned he is able to lead and direct others not only in army life but in civilian life as well.

Activities

*of the students, by the students,
for the students*

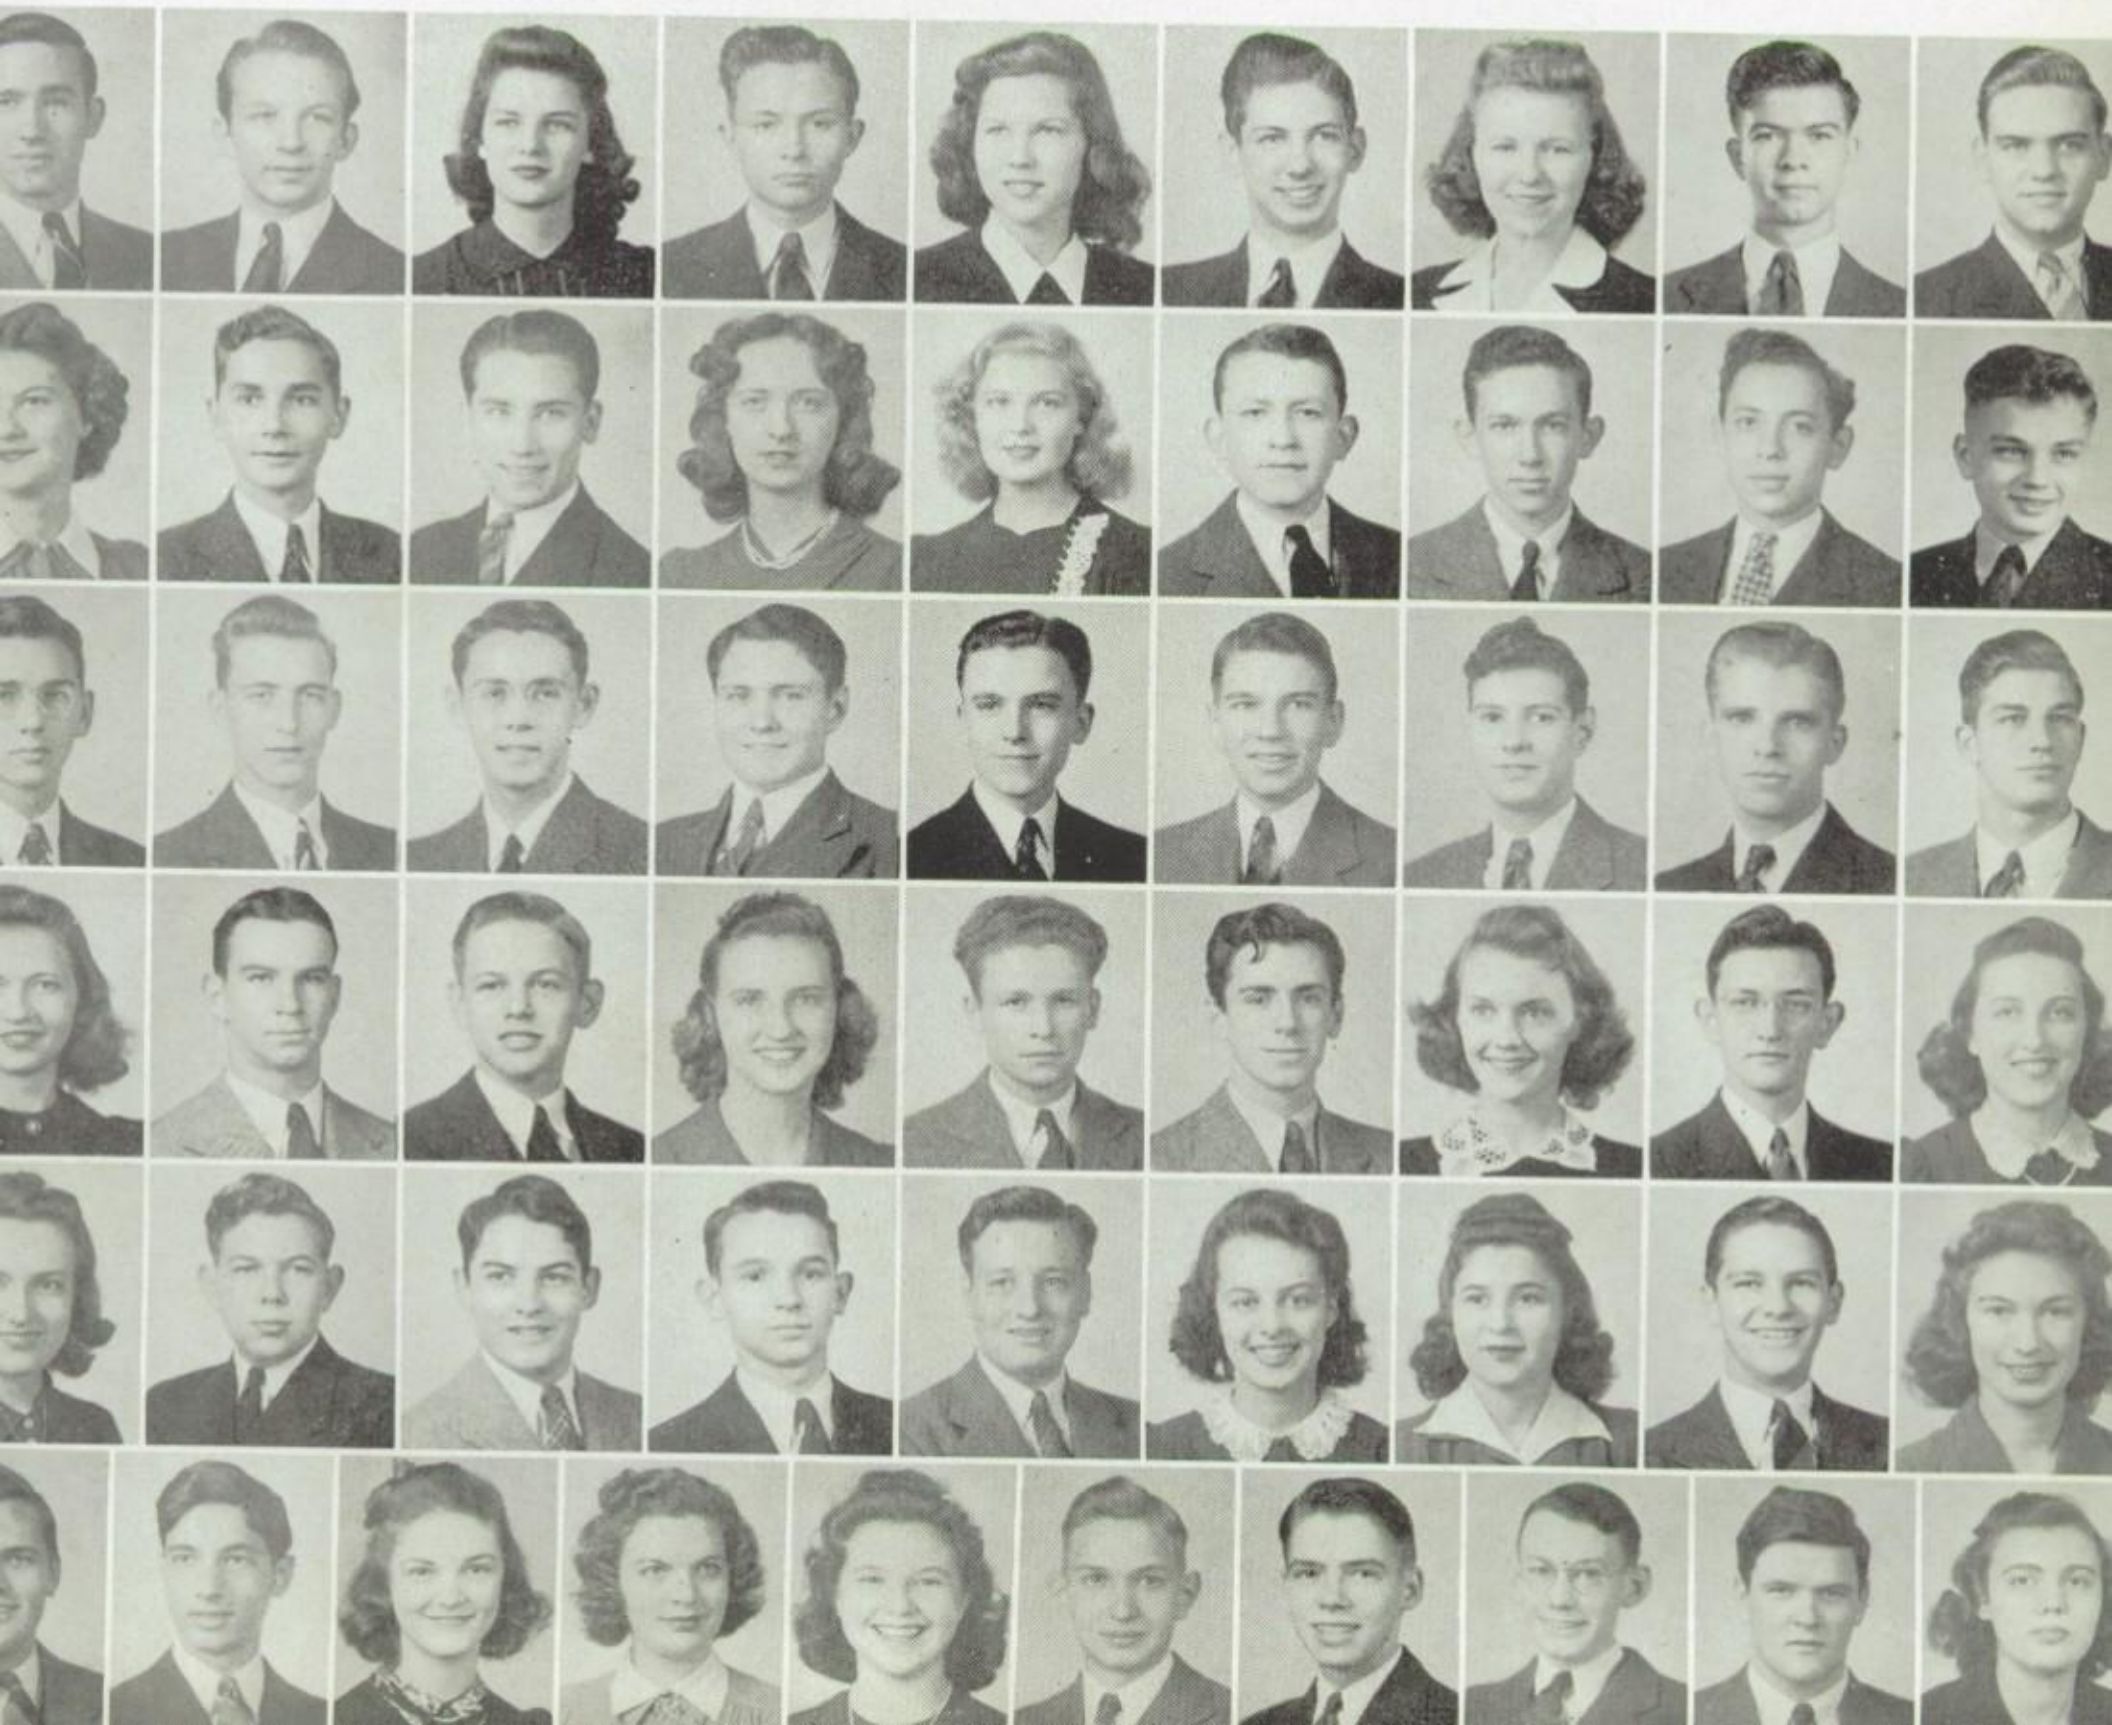

A democratic congress, this body consists of representatives from each homeroom, each class, and all major activities of the school. These students carry all important announcements to the other students and teachers and vote on all questions pertaining to the student body unless they are of great enough moment to be put to popular vote.

Social events this year included a weiner roast, Christmas dinner, and a boat ride down the Tennessee, and house-party at Camp Ocoee.

Student Council Officers at the Christmas progressive dinner: Treasurer Bill Fuller, Secretary Anita Hallmark, Vice-President Wesley King, and President J. T. Richie.

The NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Wins Praises

*Best wishes,
Anne Cole*

This is the only purely honorary organization in the whole school. Those who stand in the upper third of their class are eligible for the society. Then a committee of faculty members judge the candidates on the other three required qualities—character, service, and leadership. Three tapping ceremonies are held each year for seniors only, and at the end of the year a few juniors are elected to form the nucleus for the society the following year.

During the year the only activity of the organization itself is acting as ushers on Parents' Day and similar occasions. Its true service to the school is rendered by the members as individuals who all take part in some major activity. Each spring the society holds its annual picnic on which the officers for the coming year are elected.

Second row: Embrey Daniel, Bookstore Manager; Herschel Copelan, Assistant Bookstore Manager; Anita Hallmark, Bank Manager; George Burke; Tom Connor . . . Third row: Albert Eakin, Preston Gibbs, Margaret Hodges, Charlotte Seals, Betty Williams.

Belonging to the Bankers' Club is considered quite an honor, as membership in the organization involves many responsibilities and work of great importance to Chattanooga High School. Members of the club choose new members only after long consideration and much debate.

One of the jobs up to the Bankers is that of handling students' savings accounts in the school bank. Their biggest job, however, is handling the school bookstore, which involves selling books and supplies and issuing car ticket permits. This year the bookstore also sold United States War Stamps and Bonds to the students, selling over $500 worth in the first few months alone.

In spite of all the work, these financiers still have time for a little fun, their most important social occasions being a banquet, an annual luncheon, and a picnic at the close of the school.

The D Y N

Bob Norris, Editor; Robert Myers, Business Manager. From the junior class each spring, the faculty nominates five candidates for editor and five for business manager of the next year's Dynamo; then the class elects the two most capable. By the end of the year the editor and manager have each chosen their staffs and are ready to begin their work the following fall.

Exclusively a senior production, the Dynamo is edited by a staff largely made of former Ma-roon and White workers. From September until May these amateur publishers are busy compiling their annual. Each day during sixth period the two staffs work under the supervision of their advisers, who "show them the ropes" and make suggestions to aid them in planning their work.

It is the job of the editorial staff to plan a layout of each page, to think of a suitable theme, and to arrange the work accordingly. This includes drawing, composition, editing, supervision of the photography, and occasional conferences with the engraver and printer.

This job is by no means as simple as it sounds. Layouts are planned, and changed, and planned again; photographs have to be considered, only the best ever being used; copy also presents a problem since it must in some cases be condensed, and in some cases be increased in order to make it fit in the spaces provided for it on the layouts.

At last the "dummy" is sent to the publisher in Montgomery, Alabama; then, after checking the engraver's proof, the annual is ready!

A M O S T A F F

Live Wires

While the editorial staff is planning the book, the business staff is busy selling ads and subscriptions to make its publication possible.

Almost any afternoon in the week some of this staff may be seen working from store to store selling ads. At school they advertise for subscriptions by verses, which appear from time to time with the Student Council announcements.

Others helping to raise money for the Dynamo's publication are the candy-sellers; each day during the lunch periods they run a confectionery stand in the back of the cafeteria.

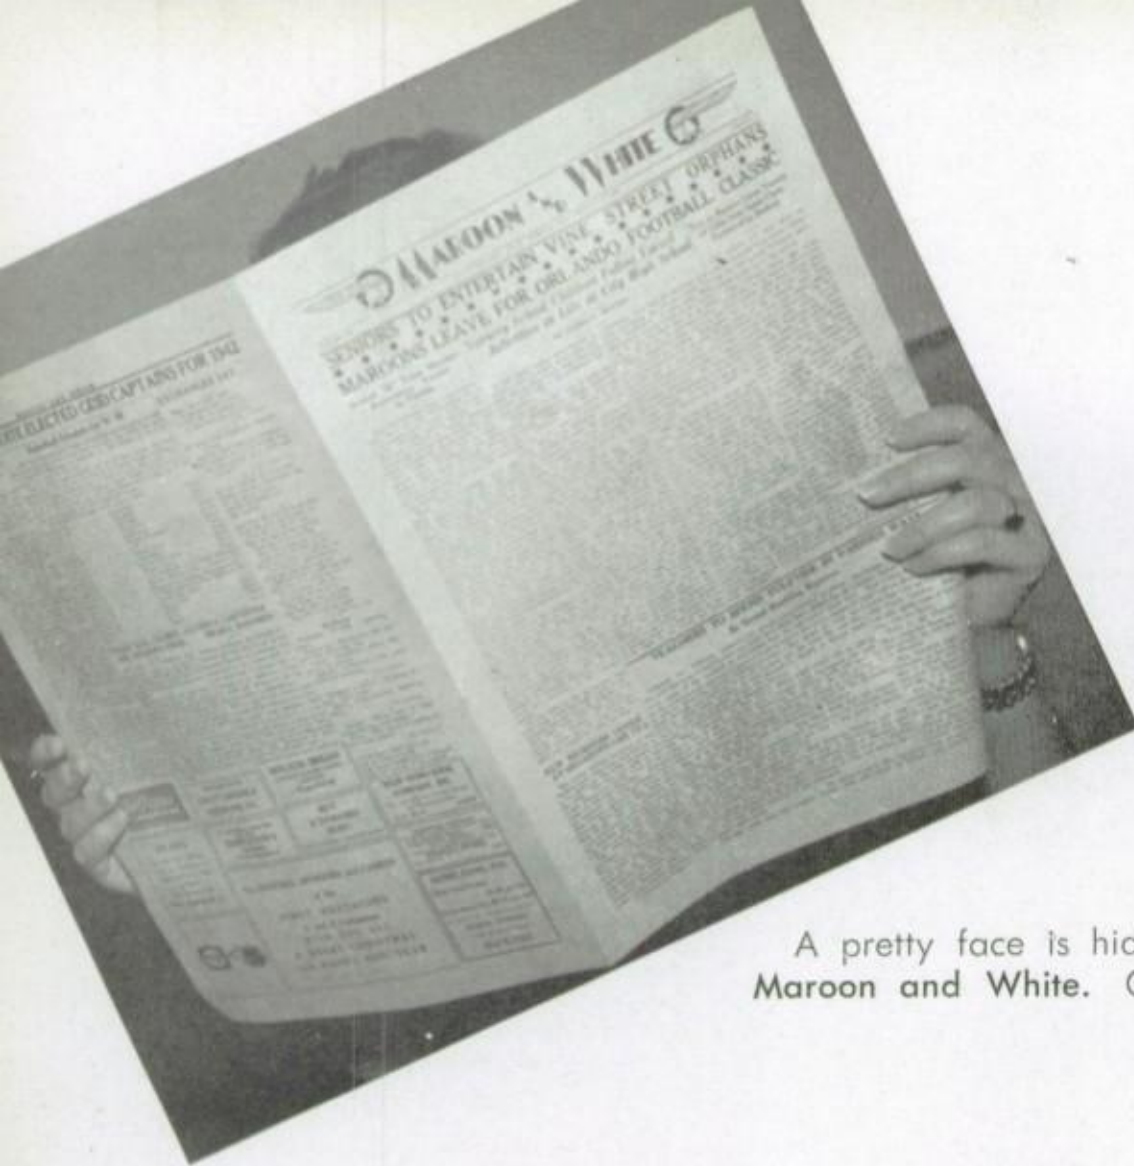

These financiers add to their income by sponsoring Stunt Nite, one of the big events of the year. Usually one of the features of this program is the announcement of the results of our popularity contest.

The MAROON

Our Fourth Estate

A pretty face is hiding behind this issue of the Maroon and White. Guess who?

The Maroon and White staffs, which are for the most part composed of members of the junior class, edit a weekly paper recording the highlights at C. H. S.

Each afternoon the editorial staff is hard at work gathering news and writing it up. By Thursday all articles for the paper coming out the following week are supposed to be turned in to be sent to press.

Working with the juniors on this staff are a number of sophomore reporters, who are acquiring practice for the next year's paper.

Kenneth Fryor and "Tat" Anderson, holding down their respective jobs as Editor-in-Chief and Business Manager. It is considered quite an honor to hold these positions because one must be elected by the whole school to obtain them.

The business staff has the job of distributing the paper and of obtaining the ads which appear in the Maroon and White each week and make its publication possible. In soliciting ads, most of the staff's work has to be done in the afternoon after school; then when these students meet in their room the following day, they report their progress and plan the next "campaign."

By working on these two staffs, students learn to handle problems involved in editing and financing a newspaper. Such experience is valuable preparation for those who expect to work on the school annual in their senior year.

TIMES PAGE STAFF

Semi-Pros.

This Times Page Staff is organized to give the weekly news—both curricular and extra-curricular—of C. H. S. Each Monday and Wednesday after school these news gatherers are busy at work, writing up articles that are to appear in the following Sunday's Chattanooga Times. Usually each article is written twice; then, after the best one has been chosen, it is typed and handed in to the Times.

One may become a member of this staff by volunteering or by being asked to join; once on the staff, the student gains valuable experience in the art of journalism.

CAMERA CLUB

See the Birdies!

Though alert for new fields of photography, this organization also gives students an opportunity to learn the basic principles underlying the taking of good pictures. A new enlarger and other recent additions to the dark room make it possible for the members to obtain practice in both the arts of developing and of enlarging photographs.

COMMERCIAL CLUB

Contacts the Business World

Any student majoring or minoring in commercial work is eligible for membership in this club.

At weekly meetings the members discuss the opportunities and possibilities of various vocations which they may some day adopt.

Their program also includes demonstrations of all office machines and, occasionally, talks by business men and women; through practical suggestions of the speakers, the members learn the true meaning of efficiency. In this way the students learn to use their ability to the fullest extent.

SECRETARIAL SERVICE

Future Civil Service

As assistant office workers the members of the Secretarial Service Club do odd jobs around the school. Among other jobs they "ditto" and mimeograph test papers for the teachers, take dictation, and even address envelopes for report cards at the end of each six weeks. The programs for the Senior Luncheon are also "run off" by these workers. In other words, the club members assist in all types of clerical work.

CINEMATOGRAPHERS

Eyes and Ears of C. H. S.

This club is a great asset to the school. During the year the members take moving-pictures of different school activities. After the films have been developed and spliced, they are run off in chapel for the students. From time to time they also obtain movies of educational interest, which they show during the study periods.

The Cinematographers are always busy, always scattered around at their various jobs. Each day during the sixth period some of the members check the old film by running it off, or prepare new film by splicing it, or discuss the pictures they plan to shoot next.

The BULLDOGS

*The Men
Behind the Scenes*

As our stage managers for all school productions—which include junior and senior plays, Stunt Nite, and our chapel programs—the Bulldogs are a busy group. They set and shift scenery, operate the lights, and even give the cues in some cases.

These “general handy men” are some of the hardest workers in school and are always on hand whenever there is a job to be done.

LIBRARY STAFF

Book Keepers

One of the privileges the students of C. H. S. have is the use of a library of approximately sixty-five hundred well-chosen books. It is the job of the student librarians, who assist Mrs. Whips, to keep these books in order and to see that they are returned to their proper shelves so that students will have no trouble locating them. Besides serving the school, these assistant librarians gain valuable experience.

BIBLE CLUB

Whence Cometh Our Strength

To be eligible for membership in the Bible Club, a student must first have taken at least one semester of Bible; then he must be elected by a majority vote.

Among the club's various activities, such as social service work for the needy, is that of distributing the daily selections for Bible readings in the homerooms.

Co-operating with the Bible classes, the members present chapel programs at different times throughout the year.

JUNIOR RED CROSS

Doing a Big Job Now

M. B. Carson, M. Boone, E. Alexander, M. Collie, S. Lutz, H. Norwood, and M. A. Wimberly arranging some Thanksgiving baskets.

This year, more than ever, our Junior Red Cross chapter is serving the community and the nation. As usual, the members delivered the Thanksgiving baskets and Christmas boxes which the different home-rooms filled for needy families; and, during their meetings, they made covers for braille books, favors, and menus for the Navy's ships at sea.

In addition to their usual activities, they made collections of magazines and other needed articles, which were sent to soldiers at camp. They also collected used stamps from which the British extract dyes. Sponsoring the school's Junior Red Cross drive this year, the chapter turned in over $300 to headquarters.

FRENCH CLUB

Le Cercle Francais

Anyone who has had two years of French or who is taking second-year French is qualified for entrance to this club. As in other language clubs, its purpose is to teach the members more about the customs of the country, to give them a chance to practice conversation, and to cover some of the finer points of the language which the ordinary class has no time to undertake. This is accomplished by having devotions, songs, and club business conducted in French and by learning to play French games.

SPANISH CLUB

Te "Si" or Not to "Si"

This club is organized much on the same basis as Le Cercle Francais. The meetings are conducted in Spanish, and the programs consist of games, songs, and discussions of the Spanish-speaking people. Each month the club receives a Spanish paper, which is prepared especially for the use of high school students and contains various bits of news about the South American countries. Occasionally the members have the privilege of conversing in person with Argentine Gauchos, who travel around the country to promote the Good Neighbor Policy.

FIRST AID CLUB

Emergency Squad

Among the most practical of the clubs at High School is the First Aid Club, consisting of girls who desire to learn the proper emergency medical treatment for cuts, burns, fractures, or other injuries. Now, more than ever before, it is important for girls to have this training, since our nation has an urgent need for people capable of handling emergencies. The club shows a true patriotic spirit by helping America become better prepared.

This club is composed of people who wish to become better acquainted with Mother Nature. When the new members are initiated each year, they are required to pin such things as twigs and leaves on their clothes and in their hair when they come to school. Their program for the year includes such activities as hikes, picnics, and other outdoor expeditions, as well as the study of plant life in the lab.

OUR GIRL

"The name 'Girl Reserve' means that a member is building up and making a part of herself those skills, ideas, and attitudes which will help her to become a finer person and to build a finer world," explains the handbook of this popular organization. Except for passing a test on the code, slogan, and purpose, which is necessary before a club can take part in the annual recognition service, these clubs have no set program but are left free to stress various phases of becoming a finer woman, according to the needs of the individual club.

Programs of their bi-weekly meetings therefore covered a wide range of subjects; among them were the purpose and program of Girl Reserves, etiquette, make-up, dress, hobbies, and plays, purely for amusement.

Another activity of these girls, especially important in this time of war, was preparing bandages and doing other defense work at Erlanger Hospital. Several members also took a course in gardening to aid in national defense.

America's First Column

With America in its second world war now, this club is especially valuable to the school, as well as to the students participating in it. In the black days following the Pearl Harbor episode, it was the members of the Citizenship Club who kept the latest news posted on the bulletin board in the back of the cafeteria where all students could read it.

During the regular meetings, the members discuss politics and present-day problems; they also study foreign countries and their positions in today's world affairs.

SCIENCE CLUB

Amateur Franksteins

In order to promote interest and to develop the minds of those who will be tomorrow's scientists, this club encourages student demonstrations. Each student has a chance to discuss and illustrate whatever hobby he has in the way of scientific projects. Some of this year's programs included demonstrations of an induction coil, an electrical furnace (both the resistance and the air furnace), thermit welding, and the combination of iodine and sodium metal.

At one of the meetings Mr. Hadley of the weather bureau explained the methods of predicting the weather.

LETTERMEN

Men of Brawn

The Lettermen's Club is the oldest organization at City and is one of the most important of all the athletic clubs. Members of this club are chosen because of their skill in such sports as football, basketball, baseball, or track.

When a student is made a Letterman, he is allowed to wear a sweater with a large "C" on it; these sweaters are bought with the money the members raise by sponsoring programs and other activities. The Lettermen's Dance and annual Vaudeville are the best known of these programs.

HOME ECONOMICS

Feminine Beau Brummels

One of the privileges of the Home Economics Clubs is that of hearing guest speakers, who give the girls helpful hints and demonstrations on manners, poise, dress design, and the proper use of make-up.

These future home-makers also gain experience in using the equipment of the home economics kitchen, as well as that of the sewing rooms; in the nursery they learn child care and nursing. All this practice will prove to be very valuable preparation for their life when they have homes of their own.

"Get Your Man"—these girls really mean business! This group is made up of junior and senior girl volunteers who sacrifice their study halls to offer their services as school monitors. During the periods in which they are "on duty," these students are expected to keep the corridors in good order, to check roaming students for passes, to run errands for the office, and to conduct parents and other visitors through the building during school hours.

The GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

Canaries

By playing for the school in chapel programs and other entertainments, the students in the orchestra add to the interest of these programs and at the same time learn to be poised before an audience. It is customary for this group to furnish the music for May Day. This year for the first time May Day was held out doors in the stadium, thus making enough room to accommodate a "full-piece orchestra."

In the spring of the year the orchestra accepted invitations to play for the Kosmos Women's Club and for the vocalists for the Spring concert.

Another interesting division of the music department is the Girls' Glee Club. Each year the club sends some of its members to participate in the annual Spring Concert, which is given at the Memorial Auditorium by the School Glee Club of the Chattanooga district. Our Glee Club was again represented by a trio sent to Johnson City to participate in the East Tennessee Vocal Competition Festival.

Besides outside entertaining, these singers are also active on school programs. In Stunt Nite the club contributes to the musical acts, and it has become a tradition for the members to sing at Commencement.

Boasting of a good group of vocalists again this year, the Boys' Glee Club was often asked to sing for the various junior high schools in town. When the C. H. S. sophomores held their annual party for the ninth graders, the club again supplied the musical entertainment. These vocalists also entertained the school during our assemblies and at Stunt Nite when they sang the military song, "Strike up the Band."

In addition to their numerous activities during the year, the boys co-operated with the other Glee Clubs in presenting a Spring Concert.

One of the new organizations this year is the Checkers' Club. It is composed of commercial students—preferably "A" or "B" students—who are elected into the organization. At the first of the year club members are assigned to different typing teachers in our Commercial Department; then they are ready to begin their work of correcting shorthand and typing papers. There are so many papers from all the classes that it would be practically impossible for the typing teachers to correct them alone, and by assisting with this work, these student helpers serve the school.

ARCHERS Cupids in the Making

The members of this club are believers in the old saying, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," so they decided to form a recreational club which participates in that interesting sport, archery.

Every member is responsible for his own bow and arrows, which he brings to each meeting; however, the purpose of the club is to study the technique of the sport, as well as to practice it.

Discovers New Talent

Sophomores who are interested in dramatics or who plan to take a public speaking course later join this club for experience and practice. During the meetings the members discuss qualities necessary in a good actor or actress; occasionally they make a study of well-known plays, and discuss the careers of noted "players."

This year one of the projects of the club is to keep up the costume wardrobe started by the Sophomore Dramatic Club two years ago. These costumes may be rented for school plays, and the proceeds go for club parties and amusements.

Besides gaining experience in management and a knowledge of dramatics, these students learn to be more poised in their daily life.

Although membership is not restricted to the senior class, one must have performed some service in the field of dramatics in order to be eligible for this select club. After one's name has been brought up, a unanimous vote is required before the candidate is accepted.

During the past year, this club has been especially active. The members not only sponsored but also they produced a comical pantomime in assembly. Another important function of theirs is to be largely responsible for Stunt Nite.

SHAKESPEARE CLUB "What Fools These Mortals Be"

Although club meetings were irregular during the past year, the Shakespeare Club endeavored to uphold its fine traditions. As usual the first meeting of the year was a tea given for the newly elected members. After this opportunity for getting acquainted, the members new and old settled down to the task of selecting, casting, and producing one of Shakespeare's plays to commemorate his birthday. The play they chose was "Much Ado About Nothing."

Aside from making a study of Shakespeare—his life, his words, and his significance—this club's purpose is acquiring experience in parliamentary practice. Outstanding among the club programs during the year were two giving information on this subject.

First row: Secretary M. F. Stone, Treasurer M. E. Gregory, Vice-president A. Cole, President C. Hanlin . . . Second row: M. Cock, S. Gray, P. Osborn, R. Montrose, J. Prebul, V. Landers, D. Powell, E. # ART

President Asa Maynard, Vice-President Jane White, Secretary Marcia McMillan, and Treasurer Mary Jean Giles.

Most of the students in the art department are members of this club since it gives them an opportunity to further the training they received through the classroom work.

Once a month a program is turned over to guest speakers who discuss the different forms of art; this enables students to gain a greater appreciation of art in all of its stages.

First row: A. Maynard, H. Chamberlain, D. Gill, M. J. Goodson, B. Coleman . . . Second row: J. White, R. Mayo, M. Kennedy . . . Third row: D. Holland, W. Green, V. L. Burke, M. McMillin, R. Gray.

CLUB

J. White, B. Shoemaker, H. McMillan, J. Eubank, working on projects for the Scholastic Magazine.

The rest of the meetings are devoted to various projects. The club is organized into groups to work on murals; then after each group has elected a chairman and selected a theme, it is ready to begin working. Some of the themes worked on this year are "America in National Defense"; "High School Girls' Activities"; and "Chattanooga, the Dynamo of Dixie."

Besides being artistic, these students are also practical. By giving a stagette and sponsoring a variety program, the club raised enough money to buy some necessary equipment for their modern-looking quarters.

President D. Hill, Secretary J. Kirkpatrick, Vice-President F. Fuller, Treasurer H. Spiva.

Made up of commissioned officers of Chattanooga High School's R. O. T. C. unit, this club is purely a recreational and social one; its sole military connection is its membership roll.

Each year the Officers sponsor two dances. The first, a formal dance, is open to the entire student body; the second, given in the spring, is usually informal. Other social activities include an outing and a progressive dinner for their sponsors.

Besides being socialites, these officers are also men of brawn. This is shown by their records in competitive football and basketball games, track meets, and other athletic contests with C. H. S.'s Sergeants' Club, as well as the Officers' Club of Central High School.

Other events on their annual program include discussions on military development in foreign affairs, and occasional talks by officers from Fort Oglethorpe.

White . . . Third row: J. Province, H. Smith, B. Alper, T. Ringwald, A. Smith, J. Fort, Aiken, B. Adams, D. Van Vleet, J. Smith, C. Hershey, J. Johnson.

Secretary-Treasurer T. Ringwald, Vice-President J. Johnson, President C. White.

The Sergeants' Club is made up of the highest ranking non-commissioned officers of C. H. S.'s R. O. T. C. In the club, these "non-coms" gain valuable experience which helps prepare them for next year's work as officers; aside from this, their time is taken up with various social and athletic functions.

During the year, the members escort their dates to their dance, weiner roast, picnics, and other outings. These activities have become annual events on the school's recreational calendar and are eagerly anticipated by all those involved.

The Sergeants are also active in the field of athletics, baseball being one of their favorite sports. They compete with both the Officers' and Corporals' Clubs during the season.

CORPORALS' CLUB

The Military Hub

First row: C. Schneitman, Vice-President J. Conley, President K. Pryor, H. Nite, Secretary-Treasurer T. Conner . . . Second row: T. Jones, J. Miller, B. Parker, A. Ringwald, H. Smith, T. Heyer, L. Anderson . . . Third row: L. Royer, F. Rogers, H. Cartwright, M. McClure, D. Pcindexter, B. Neighbors.

Vice-President Conley, Secretary-Treasurer Nite, and President Pryor talk over matters on the steps.

This military social club, a recent organization in the school, is only in its second year; nevertheless it has been quite a success.

At club meetings the members discuss military problems and hear occasional lectures. Like the other military clubs they also plan dances and outings, and participate in recreational sports.

This year they particularly distinguished themselves by winning every game of basketball they played against the Sergeants' and Officers' Clubs.

FENCING CLUB

Foiled Again

First row: B. Rowe, W. Green, R. Reynolds, Vice-President J. Timberlake, Treasurer B. Carroll, President D. Barrow, Secretary M. McMillan, W. Pinson, E. Craighead, G. Jones . . . Second row: G. Carroll, H. Kirchbaum, T. Harley, L. M. Collie, B. Cole, B. Barton, B. Cobb, R. Ballou, J. Johnson . . . Third row: L. Watson, C. Comer, S. Christians, B. Brown, E. Collins, A. Kunz, T. Ward, N. Ellis, V. Casale . . . Fourth row: C. Armor, G. Kelly, J. Fort, C. Bradford, K. Langley.

By constantly practicing both at the club meetings and after school, the Fencing Club learns correct methods of fencing. Equipment is partially furnished by funds in the club treasury; but, since blades are easily broken, each member is responsible for his own foil. Besides being a splendid amusement, this sport helps one to acquire suppleness and grace, and to learn co-ordination of the mind and body.

TENNIS CLUB

What A Raguet

Although the membership of the Tennis Club includes the school's tennis team as well as many other able players, the function of this club is to promote interest in the game rather than active participation in it.

In order to accomplish this purpose the members discuss various new slants on the game, and occasionally have famous players as guest speakers. This year their list included such celebrities as Manker Patten, President of the Southern Lawn Tennis Association; and G. Lyttleton Rogers, the Irish Davis Cup star.

First row: W. King, President R. Norris, H. James, G. Ackley, C. Hershey, B. Fuller . . . Second row: R. Jones, D. Deakins, D. They, B. Alexander, F. Holder, P. Wills, C. Betterton, E. Effron . . . Third row: B. Barr, E. Sherlin, J. Donovan, M. Orr, B. Donovan, J. Jakes.

On the GRIDIRON at C. H. S.

The major sport, football, endured a rather hectic season at C. H. S. When everything was just about ready to inaugurate another gridiron season, that dread disease, poliomyelitis, struck this city, bringing to a standstill all public activity. The first two games on this year's schedule were canceled; nevertheless Coach Puckett continued to drill his squad with high hopes and a few reserves.

In any kind of battle reserves are probably the most necessary factor. Military combat or friendly competition are both under this heading. Although they possessed a strong team, the Maroons lacked sufficient strength in this field. Inexperienced men also hampered this year's eleven.

FOO AT CHATT

City High's football squad, reverse center and all, pauses for a picture before departing on their jaunt by train to Orlando, Florida, to play in a post-season battle with Florida All-Stars.

In their first encounter the Maroons' ever-growing lack of reserves proved a drawback against a strong Birmingham Woodlawn eleven. In their next contest, they struggled to a 0-0 tie with a determined Notre Dame team. Though they outclassed the Greenies in every respect, they were unable to carry the ball into pay dirt. Then they hit the Red Raiders of Baylor where again the lack of reserves meant the loss of victory. Following this and directly in mid-season, Coach Puckett proceeded to reverse the team. Although he got no farther than the center, the ball snapper-backer, whom he politely turned around to face his own backfield.

When the Maroons took the field against a strongly favored Bradley team, everyone thought the center had gone crazy when he lined up with his back toward the enemy. They then saw a reorganized team almost overcome the superior Bears. A few bad breaks cost the Maroons this close game, 13-7. In the next game the Maroons' reversed center did not click against a five-man line set up by Phillip's High in Birmingham. Returning to Chattanooga, the Maroons did little better against McCallie's five-man defense.

On November 29, 1941, nine days before Pearl Harbor, in one of the greatest football contests to be held in Chamberlain Field, a Maroon eleven battled their hearts out. For three quarters and two minutes, they held a superior Purple eleven down and under. But the lack of reserves, the main cause apparently for a disastrous season, sent the Maroons behind the eight ball, 27-9. Thus ended another season as the Maroons dropped this much-wanted game with their arch rival.

But wait! The Maroons were not ready to hang up those football shoes and beautiful Maroon pants and shirts. For from far down in the deep South, Florida, had come word that our famous reversed center was wanted with the team for a charity game in Orlando, December 19. Yet lady luck was still acting bad, so the Maroons dropped this game with the Central Florida All-Stars, 21-7.

COACHES and CAPTAINS

One of the added features of Chattanooga High School is its magnificent stadium and adjacent football field. Built at an approximate cost of $45,000, it is one of the most modern stadiums in surrounding territory. Spacious dressing rooms, an office, and a modern rifle range are some of the features of this building.

Lack of lights and hot water prevented the playing of any home games there this season. Future seasons will probably bring the Maroons and their foes to combat on this home field.

Many oddities have been seen on the gridiron during many seasons of football. Yet this year one of the things yet to be conceived struck the Syracuse University coach's mind. He reversed his center and thereby began one of the strangest events in football.

It seems that this coach's idea worked pretty well. An added feature and ground gaining factor, it provided for more accurate passing of the ball to the backfield and better blocking opportunities for the center. Also it gave the opposing team a feeling of uncertainty as to just what would happen next.

Well, there was a gentleman down in Chattanooga by the name of James M. Puckett, Coach of City High's football team. He decided to try this phenomenal idea on his team which had few reserves.

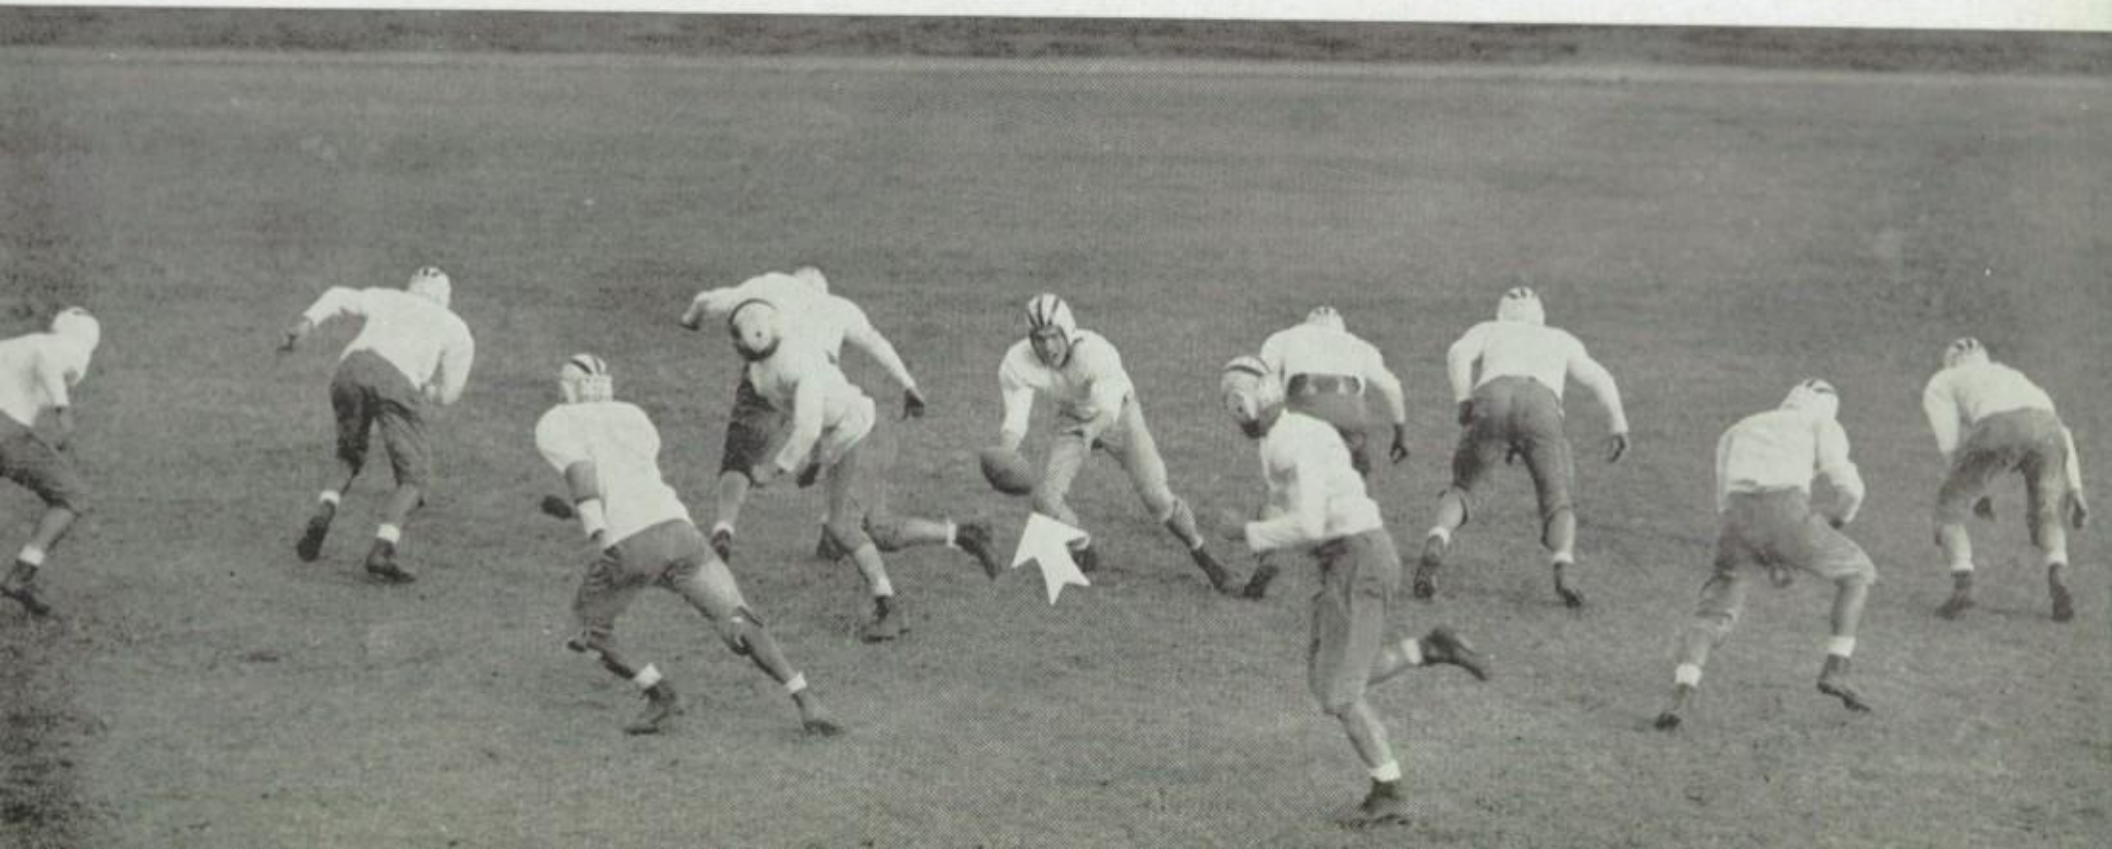

An amazed crowd saw this crazy set-up almost defeat the Bradley Bears, one of the strongest teams in surrounding territory. However, some smart coach set up a five-man defensive line which hampered the effectiveness of the turned around center.

The committee on football rules did not like this idea, and finally outlawed this strange formation.

Coach Barnes and Captain Ray talk it over before going in to turn back the foe.

Every year fans of the major indoor sport, basketball, overflow the gym when C. H. S. basketeers are entertaining a foe. This year proved no exception as Coach Barnes turned out a team which could really handle that ball on the hardwoods. This team, which played consistent ball all season, defeated every opponent in the city at least once.

This star team, led by Sam Ray and George O'Neal, tied with the Purples of Central for the mythical City Prep League championship. They were classed as the hardest opponents to meet the Bradley Bears, state champions. In their old rivalry with Central, they had to be content to be runner-ups to them in the third district tournament. Sam Ray and O'Neal made All-City berths because of their efforts with Coach Barnes' outfit. Fred Pardue also played good ball.

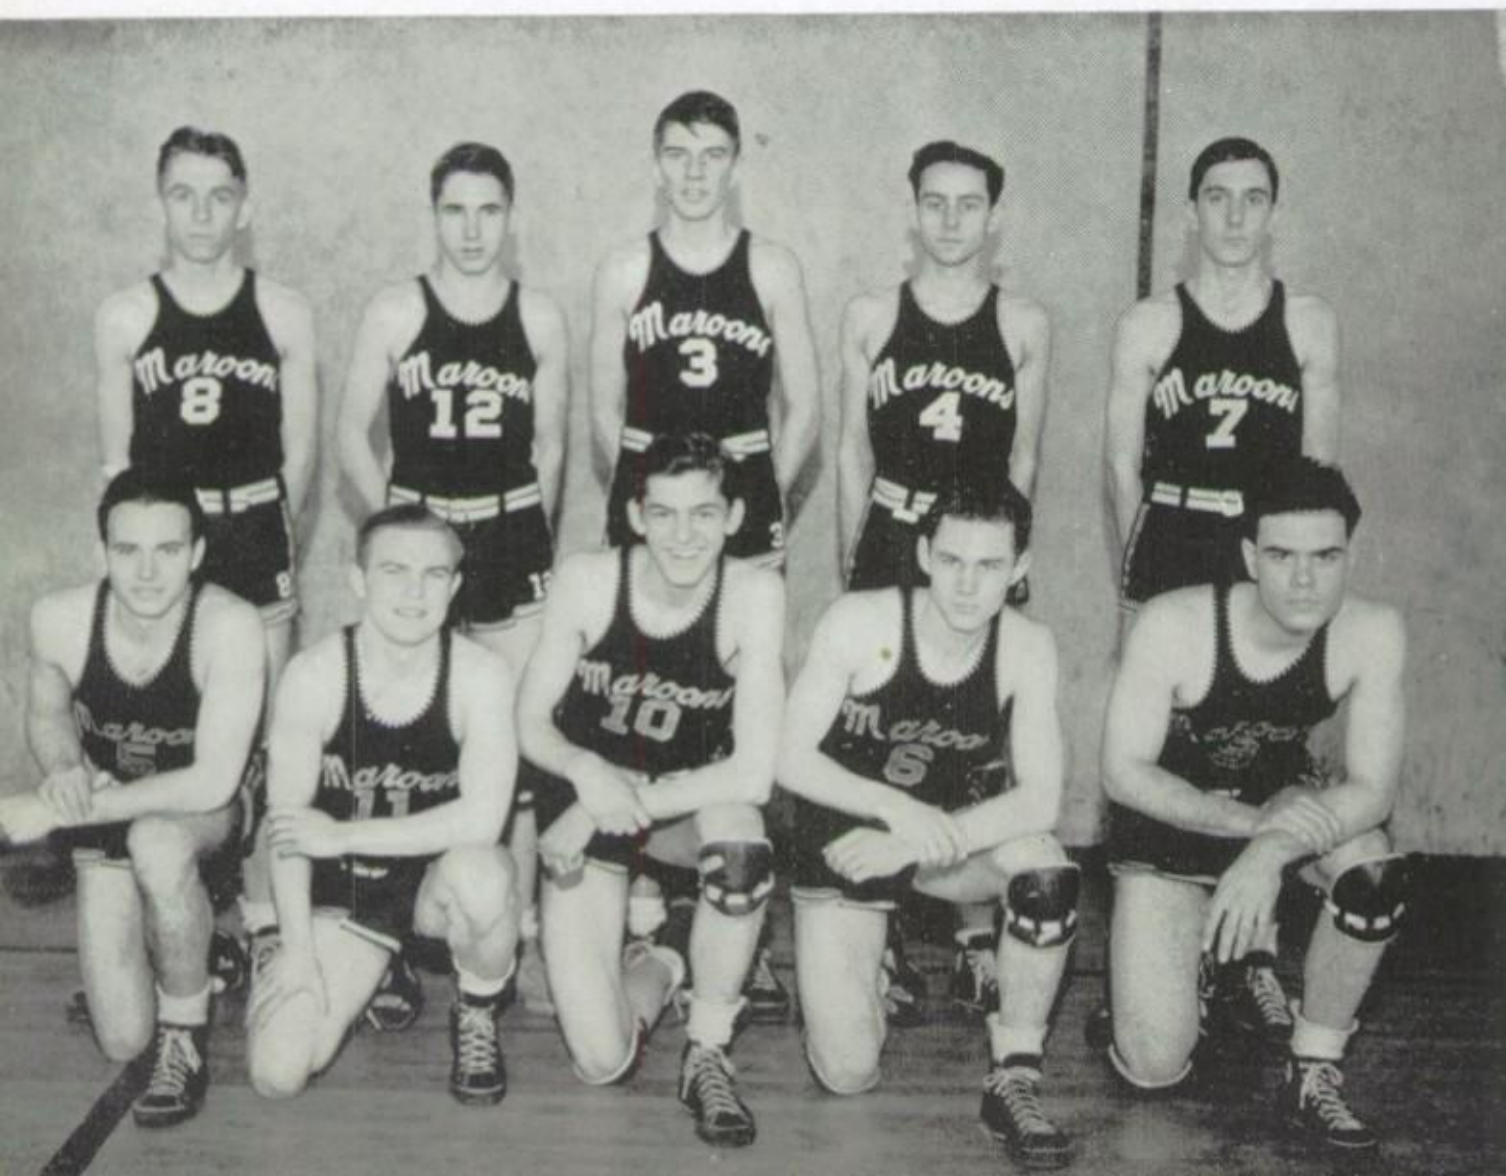

This year the team took its annual eastern trip, a journey all the way to Washington, D. C. En route they played games in North and South Carolina.

At their annual banquet the Maroons elected "Slam" O'Neal and Jimmy Rawlings to captain and alternate as leaders of next season cagers.

Important factors in the basketball machine of City were these capable managers—Alton Davenport and Dickie Edwards.

WOOD

As a rule, each year the Junior team captures the championship for their division. This year's team was no exception. Under the guidance of Coach George Mathis, the future Varsity team defeated practically every foe whom they encountered.

This group, besides building strong bodies, is the foundation of next year's Varsity basketball quintet. Last season's team furnished at least three of this season's Varsity.

Every afternoon you may hear the whack of the ball against the bat as these young men practice away under the warm spring sun.

This year's team was composed of such ball players as Chester Smith, Alton Davenport, Jack Hamilton, and Lucy Hudson, brother of famous Syd of the Washington Senators. This scrappy outfit presented a good showing for C. H. S. on the diamond.

This year in the Chattanooga Times' five mile race at Chamberlain Field, C. H. S. had one representative in a field of thirty entrants—a short, dark-haired, dark-skinned, good-looking fellow with a pair of strong legs by the name of William Carroll.

In the cold days of January and February, every afternoon Bill could be seen pacing about the U. C. track. Consistent practice developed wind, endurance, and strong legs for this short cinder man.

In last year's race Bill finished third. This year he outran Grant of Soddy Daisy to break the tape in thirty minutes and fifty seconds. For this he was awarded a beautiful, gold wrist watch.

Spring

Despite lack of school courts on which to practice, this year's City tennis team was one of the best the school ever produced. In absence of Coach Stanton Smith, Joe Copelan, University of Chattanooga net star, took over the job of rounding out the material and produced a winning team as a result.

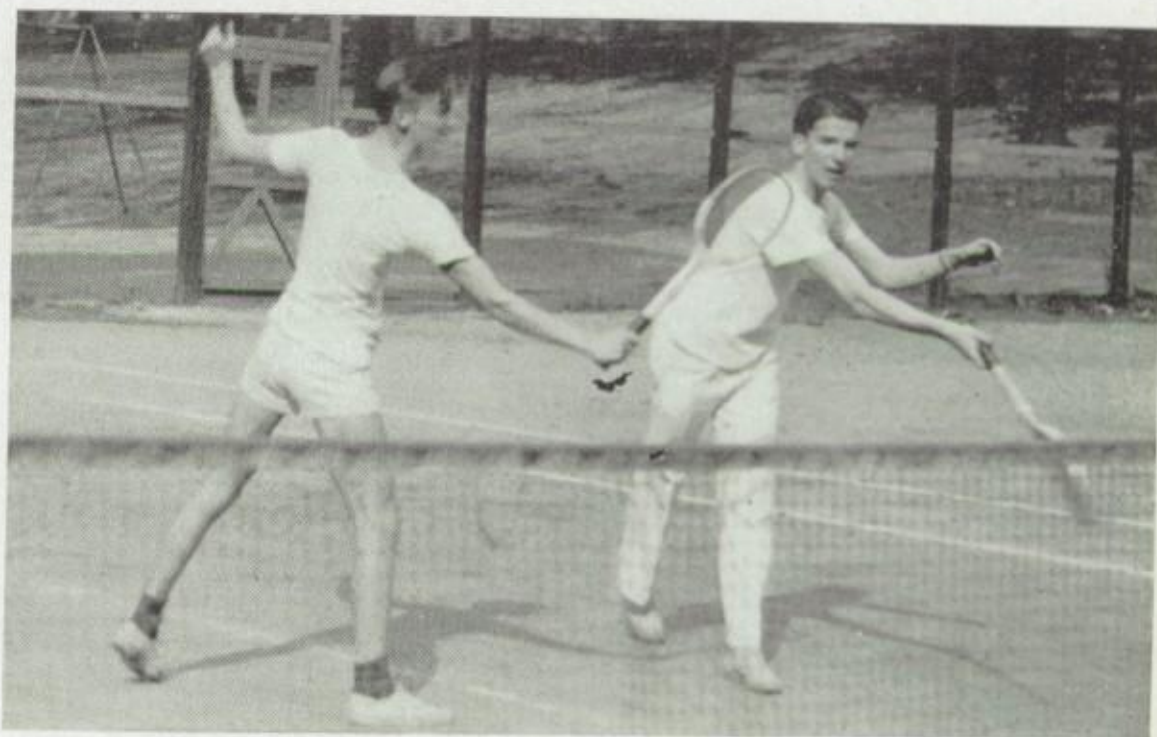

Copelan built his team around three lettermen who returned from a team which finished second in the state last year—Robert Norris, Hugh James, and Ben Alper. Newcomers to the team were Herschel Copelan and George Ackley.

Always a hindering obstacle in their path to the city title, no school courts became a big problem again this year as usual. The Maroons formerly had two courts adjacent to the west wing, but there were no funds to keep these courts up. Some time later gravel was sprinkled on them in an effort to make asphalt courts, but there the actual building of the courts stopped.

Matches were played against all the local school teams, and the State Interscholastic tournament was taken in.

GIRLS' ATHLE

Spring brings the girls onto the field to play outdoor games, and build human pyramids.

For the benefit of those girls interested in sports, the Athletic Department offers various opportunities along this line. Under the supervision of Miss Sadie Magill and the gym captains, the work was carried on very successfully.

There are athletic clubs, one for the sophomore girls and one for the junior and senior girls. At the club meetings, and in gym classes, these athletes play such games as basketball, volleyball, and soccer.

Winning Basketball team: First row: D. Deakins, C. Hunt, B. J. Underwood, J. Eubank, P. Osborne
Second row: P. Farrior, B. Case, R. Goode, and P. Wills.

TICS AT C. H. S.

Annually the Girls' gym classes participate in several events. Parents' Day, which takes place in early fall, was presented for the first time in the new stadium. Mary Louise Thrasher's class won the box of candy for being the best-drilled class in the review. May Day, given out of doors for the first time, was one of the most beautiful spectacles ever witnessed at City High. The impressive entrance of the court, and the beautiful dances were enjoyed by a large audience of students, parents, and friends.

The GYM CAPTAINS

Each spring try-outs for the coming year's gym captains are held. The best are selected to lead the classes through a whole year's work. Among her duties are to drill the class, lead it in exercises, teach her class a dance to be presented May Day, and drill them for Parents' Day. A special captain for the drill squad is chosen for the performances given between the halves of the City-Central game.

On April 28, the R.O.T.C. honored Miss Sadie Magill with a review a few days before the presentation of May Day.

Each year two big days stand out for the gym classes on their calendar for the year. One is Parents' Day and the other is the annual City-Central Drill.

On October 29, Parents' Day held attention as hundreds of students passed before parents and friends alike. For the first time in its long history, the location was changed from the dusty bowl in the rear of the school to the new stadium field.

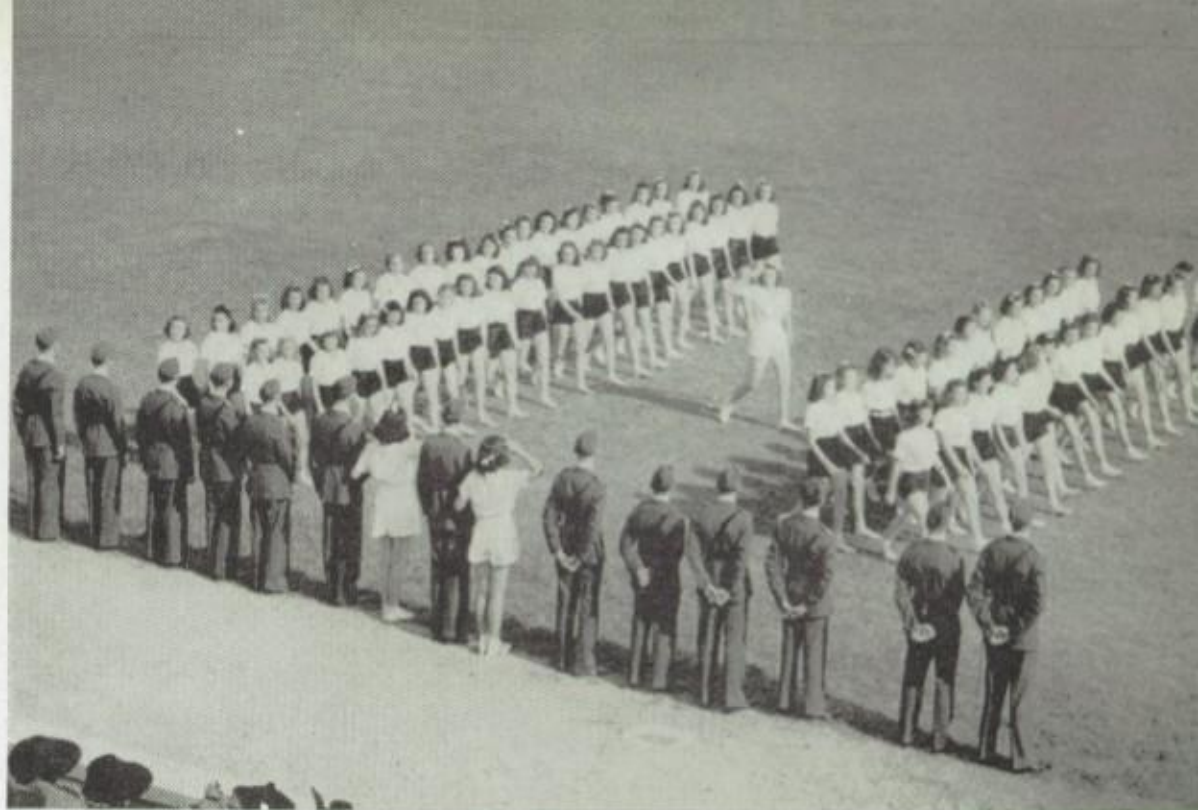

At this time, the gym captains presented their sponsors, and, in turn, R. O. T. C. sponsors for the year were formally introduced. Passing in review before several judges, the girls' gym classes competed for prizes to be awarded to two best groups participating in the drill. The drill squad,

In maroon and white, spelled out C. H. S., after which the R. O. T. C. unit, two battalions strong, passed in review in military fashion.

This year's City-Central drill, presented at the halves of the annual gridiron classic between the two rival schools, was well up to the events of the day. Taking its cue from a patriotic standpoint, the girls' gym classes marched onto the field and formed a "V" signifying victory. Following this formation a large football, decorated with the colors of both schools, was wheeled out from which a City co-ed and a Central cadet emerged, showing a feeling of good-will between the schools.

NITE

Chattanooga High's most popular entertainment of the school year, Stunt Nite, again went over with great success. Under the capable direction of Miss Elizabeth Wilburn, this year's production, the twenty-second, was one of the best ever given.

As in the past years, Stunt Nite was divided into several parts. The first act was a group of miscellaneous circus stunts which implied the idea, "The Circus Comes to C. H. S." A La Conga Dance and the Rhumba were the main features in the South American part; and a patriotic theme, showing the representation of United Nations, gave added touches to a splendid showing.

"Fly Away Home"

SENIOR PLAY

"Fly Away Home," the senior play, was a rather serious comedy, which gave the seniors an opportunity to present a well-rounded and balanced production. Written for a much more experienced cast, the play was handled quite well by its high school actors and was enjoyed to the utmost by those who saw it.

From a middle-aged, well-travelled business man to a fourteen year old boy, with lovers, sons, daughters, and a scatter-brained wife in between, the characters covered an unusually wide range for so young a cast; but all of the players carried their parts well. A play of which the director, cast, and class were justly proud, "Fly Away Home" was a success in every respect.

"Ever Since Eve"

JUNIOR PLAY

Far surpassing the average high school production, "Ever Since Eve" was one of the most enjoyable plays High School has seen in many years. A riotous comedy, the play brought laugh after laugh from the delighted audience.

Members of the cast proved themselves capable actors in the field of comedy, though the serious scenes, of which there were few, might have been more skillfully played by an older group. Any faults in the play, however, were more than balanced by the excellence of the comedy. A well-selected and well-cast play, "Ever Since Eve" showed the juniors at their best.

ORPHANS' HARVEST

Hay, hay-seeds, and hay fever featured the annual Senior Harvest Festival, a howling success despite red noses and violent sneezes. But the most remembered event of the first semester for every senior was at the Orphans' Party, which proved the best possible way to begin Christmas Holidays.

Feeling a little self-conscious with their new children, "Papa and Mama Senior" paraded their charges about the building, showing faculty and other students (especially the faculty) how children should be handled. With gifts, furnished by the class, and "parents," mother and father tried to make their already ecstatically happy children still happier, but the adopters seemed to enjoy the toys and party almost more than the adoptees. Watching every facial expression, listening for the slightest complaint, proud parents would have spoiled their children completely had they been with them longer than two hours.

PARTY and FESTIVAL

High spot of the party was Santa Claus' dramatic and frightening entry on a motorcycle. Some orphans cried, some laughed, and part of the faculty turned gray.

Cries of "Where's Mary's present?" and "Johnny didn't get his," were heard as Santa Claus Charles Rogers presented the children with the gifts piled mountain high under the twenty-foot tree. Sophomores and juniors were a little envious of the seniors, but remembering that they would have their chance when they "grew up", the underclassmen accepted their fate and enjoyed the party as much as the seniors.

Earlier in the semester, the "big-shots" entertained themselves and many other students with the Harvest Festival barn dance. Even the cornstalks and groups of "hicks" seated about, failed to dampen the general celebration by Daisy Mae and Little Abner, who carried jugs and smoked empty pipes.

As the pictures on this page show, the seniors had a fine time the first half of their last year and gave the rest of the school some pleasure also. In fact the upper-crust proved that it could break down and enjoy itself just as much as the lower-half.

SHIRLEY ANDERSON
Queen of May Day for 1942

May 19

With festivities held this year in the newly-constructed stadium, Shirley Anderson and David Hill were crowned queen and king of the May, reigning over the beautiful court, the gym captains, and their sponsors.

The 1942 presentation took on added color as the costumes and beautiful flowers gave a vivid and startling contrast to the setting of the golden and silver throne on the stadium field.

Feature dances on the program included four May Pole dances, a ballet, and the crowning of the royalty by talented and graceful Ardath Guedron.

Betty Jane Underwood's class won first prize with a dance "Over the Rainbow", and the blue May Pole dance, presented by Betty Lee Harris' class, won second place.

Most popular and attractive girl of C.H.S., Ann Lauter served as Maid of Honor for the occasion, and Dorothy Jean Harwood was the train bearer.

It was truly one of the school's most colorful and beautiful events with Miss Sadie Magill, gym instructor, in charge of the arrangements.

Other outstanding showings were given by the classes of Mary Louise Thrasher, Marjorie Rennick, and Mary Edith Gregory. Mary Louise's class presented a military drill and the manual of arms, while Marjorie Rennick's class, dressed in Scandinavian costumes, followed with a Kiss Polka.

"Smoke Gets In Your Eyes," a ballet by Mary Edith Gregory's class, was very gracefully, featuring Ardath Guedron as a soloist.

Dancing to "Valse Elise," which preceded the crowning of the king and queen, were Eva Catherine Silas, Virginia Silas, Betty Caton, Charleyne Bates, Lois Garvin, and Meriam Levine.

As has been the custom for the past two years, "Miss C.H.S." was presented at the annual May Day celebration. This year's "Miss C.H.S." was Wanda Hundley, escorted by Bill Oliphant. Her attendant was Rosemary Goode, escorted by Charles Martin.

Previous selections were Aline Hammett in 1940, and Marian Massey last year.

Trying to act like "kids" again (and succeeding very well, the Seniors dropped their dignity for a day and came to school on Senior Day dressed as everything imaginable and a few things unimaginable. Grandmothers paraded about the campus and halls with hula girls (male and female), clowns, cowboys, nightmares, senators, and several people in victory suits sans pants. A circus band (uniforms courtesy another "school") on roller skates finished off the already joyful occasion by playing the "Beer Barrel Polka" so loud that no one could study.

An unusually funny and well-prepared chapel program closed the day for the underclassmen, but Seniors went to the annual Senior Luncheon to eat, and listen to appropriate impromptu speeches by their classmates.

The day left everyone limp, and though many Seniors found it hard to recover their lost dignity, all were sorry when the Class of '42 had finished its Senior Day at High School.

"The Scholar"

The student who's ever in earnest,
Who is proud of the words, "Well done,"
Who sees in his toil the path ahead
Till the summit is finally won,

Delights in completion of his tasks,
And sees in each finished day
The image of days which he will face
Till that memorable hour in May.

He admits that his school day is laden
With trials and with burdensome care,
But he knows that his work is worth doing—
Abounding in joy, unaware!

He who is sincerely eager,
Who knows that each eventful day
Is blest by the work he produces,
Work not to be measured in pay—

Is graced with the title of "Scholar,"
Earns even the homage of kings;
His days are complete and resplendent,
Delighting in scholarly things!

GRAHAM BETTS,
Class Poet.

Class Will

We, the graduating class of 1942, Chattanooga High School, County of Hamilton, State of Tennessee, being of sound mind and memory, and considering the uncertainty of this frail and transitory life, do, therefore, make, ordain, publish, and declare this to be our last will and testament.

After the payment of our debts and graduation expenses, we do hereby devise, give and bequeath as follows:

I. We bequeath all our good qualities (if any) to all future graduating classes with the fervent hope that they will succeed as we have, if we have.

II. We make known to Mrs. W. B. Price, Mrs. Elizabeth Dalton, Mr. W. P. Selcer, and to all teachers who have devoted so much time and energy to our educational betterment, our gratitude.

III. To the Sophomore and Junior Classes, we bequeath the dogged determination and super strength that are necessary to reach the heights of graduation.

IV. Betty McGaughy and Graham Betts leave their dramatic talents to Peggy Osborne and Tom Connor.

V. David Hill wills that all-round excellence to Charles White.

VI. To Embrey Daniel, Joe Johnson, Jean Bishop, and Donald Van Vleet, the leaders of next year's class, this class's officers, Tom Caldwell, Anita Hallmark, Kathryn Forrester, and Frank Fuller, will their qualities of leadership.

VII. Anne Lauter leaves her popularity and good looks to Mary Faye Raulston.

VIII. The two Roberts, Norris and Myers, yield their executive office, slightly used, to their capable successors, Kenneth Pryor and "Tat" Anderson. May they use the broom more often there than in their present quarters.

IX. James Kirkpatrick bequeaths his military sobriety to Ted Ringwald, Rufus Sauls, and Howard Smith.

X. Wanda Hundley leaves her personality and charm to Elizabeth Effron.

XI. Sam Ray leaves his prowess on the hardwood to Jimmy Rawlings with the hope that he will lead the Maroons to a championship next year.

XII. We, the whole class, by this, our will, do dispose of the custody of our adopted children at the Vine Street Orphanage to our successors, the class of '43. We do hereby appoint them their legal guardians and Santa Claus.

We do hereby make, constitute, and appoint Miss Ruth Scholze, the sole executrix of this, our last will and testament, and do hereby revoke all and every former will made by us.

BOB DENHAM, Class Lawyer.

In witness whereof, we hereunto put our hands in the presence of one another and the testators.

BONNIE GILBERT,

KATE GARVIN,

ETHEL WOOD.

Class History

In the fall of 1939 it started. Four hundred Sophomores, the present Senior Class, crept up that long flight of steps into the main entrance of their home for the coming three years; and that home is Chattanooga High School. Shyly, timidly, we took in our new surroundings, a formidable element of which was the class of confident Seniors. After a few days of adjustment we showed both the Seniors and the teachers that this was no ordinary class.

Shortly after our induction, we assembled in the chapel to elect class officers. The office of president proved a close race between Tom Caldwell and Bill Fuller, with Tom in the lead. Bill was made vice-president; Jessie Mason, secretary; and Robert Myers, treasurer. Mrs. Elizabeth Dalton was appointed class sponsor.

In our first year we led the whole school in ticket selling for the annual City-Central game. Our achievement proved a talisman to High School, for City not only defeated Central but also came out tops in the city-wide run-off for champions.

The most enjoyable social event of our Sophomore year was the skating party held at Warner Park. We were literally all over the floor during most of the evening. Those spills were good-natured tumbles that served as occasions to make new friends and to strengthen old friendships.

September, 1940, found us again ascending the steps of C. H. S. This time we looked forward to seeing former classmates and teachers. As we visited from door to door, we realized how glad we were to get back.

In our Junior year, our former president, Tom Caldwell, was elected to succeed himself. Anita Hallmark won the vice-presidency; Kathryn Forrester, the secretaryship; while Frank Fuller was elected warder of the purse. We were sorry to lose Mrs. Dalton, who had so capably served as class sponsor, but were fortunate in inducing Mrs. Lois Price to become her successor, and Mrs. Price steered us through our remaining stay at High School.

The highlight of the social activities for the year, the Junior play, Seventeen, was a howling success, due both to the excellent directing of Mr. Charles B. Watts and the well-selected cast.

On one eventful day Dr. Annetta Trimble announced that seven Juniors had been elected to the National Honor Society. The next few minutes, filled with hope eternal, were breath-taking. Anne Cole, Robert Myers, Henry Goodman, Betty McGaughy, Robert Norris, Tom Caldwell, and Nancy Smothermon were squired to the platform by regular members of the society. At the first meeting of the Honor Group, Anne Cole was elected president; Robert Myers, vice-president; Betty McGaughy, secretary; and Henry Goodman, treasurer.

That year the Maroon and White was High School's pride. Robert Norris, editor-in-chief, and Robert Myers, business manager, were supported by a capable staff with Mrs. Roy Felts and Mr. Charles Thomasson as sponsors.

The year was climaxed by the Junior-Senior party, which was both an artistic and a social success, and which was greatly enjoyed by members of both classes.

Upon our return to school in September, 1941, we felt a pardonable pride at the prospects of being upper-classmen—the envied class of the school; we were seniors. We settled down with a determination to make our class the best that City High has ever graduated. In spite of the noise and confusion made by 1,365 students, there was something lacking; some of our best-loved teachers, whom we had learned to admire and respect, had been called to the colors or had left for other reasons. Among those were our principal, Mr. Bates; Mrs. Gillespie, Mrs. Barger, Miss Brammer, Mr. Smith, Coach Farmer, Colonel "Sandy" Summers, Mr. Thomasson, and Mr. Watts; but we have gained in the shake-up our former class sponsor, Mrs. Dalton; Mr. Scott Mr. Shelton, Miss Wilburn, Mr. Woods, Mr. Yarbrough, and Mr. Selcer, who, in the absence of Mr. Bates, has stepped competently from head of the Commercial Department to principal.

Because of the superior leadership of our class officers, we re-elected them all; Tom Caldwell took up the gavel for his third year. The Student Council elected its officers, J. T. Richie, president; Wesley King, vice-president; Anita Hallmark, secretary; and Bill Fuller, treasurer. Creed Hoodenpyle was made student marshal and Edward McConnell, student co-ordinator.

This year the R. O. T. C. regiment, instructed by Lieutenant-Colonel Douglas Mc-Millan, Major Hunter Byington, and Sergeant R. M. Proctor, was reduced from three to two battalions, commanded by Colonel David Hill and Frank Fuller, lieutenant-colonel; Jimmy Kirkpatrick and Edward McConnell were made majors; Bill Fuller, Herschel Copelan, Tom Caldwell, William O'Donoghue, J. T. Richie, George Burke, Wesley King, Creed Hoodenpyle, and Robert Myers, captains; Howard Spiva served as captain of the band.

In the Girls' Athletic Department, Shirley Anderson, and Betty McGaughy were majors; Lillian Jones, Catherine Brown, Mary Edith Gregory, Jayn Allison, Betty Jean Clift, Mary Louise Thrasher, Betty Harris, Doris Pope, "Tad" Forrester, Betty Jane Underwood, and Alice Palmer led their squads as captains.

Because of the splendid work previously done by Robert Norris and Robert Myers on the Maroon and White, they were elected editor-in-chief and business manager, respectively, of the annual. The Dynamo was strengthened by having Miss Betty Bates, business faculty adviser, and Miss Katherine Pryor as literary adviser.

Fly Away Home, the Senior Class Play, proved to be a big hit. The excellent directing of Miss Elizabeth Wilburn was one of the most important factors in the success of this comedy.

On December 19, ninety-six orphans arrived from the Vine Street Orphanage as guests at the annual Christmas Party. For several weeks previous to that day, we worked on the preparations for the event. We all had a good time making the orphans happy, while they in turn enjoyed to the fullest the Christmas festivities. The party was brightened by Charles Rogers as Santa Claus, who came speeding down the aisle on his motor-scooter.

A highlight of the year was the Times' five mile race in which C. H. S.'s only entry—Billy Carroll, dashed into first place.

Ed West led the football team through a season of courageous playing against extreme odds. Despite no winning games in the city, two of the team, West and Sam Ray, made the All-City teams selected by the sports writers. When a successful basketball season closed, our boys tied with Central for first place in the City and were runners-up in the district meets. Sam Ray, captain, was again on the mythical All-City five; Fred Pardue placed on the second team. As usual, the junior basketball team won the district meet.

The most enjoyed chapel program of the year was a comedy produced by the Masquers' Club entitled, "And the Light Went Out." "Dr." Graham Betts in his impersonation of a French showman was supported by a capable cast made up of Ardath Guerdon, Albert Eakin, Davis Alexander, Edward McConnell, Betty Jean Clift, "Tad" Forrester, Jerry Harper, Tom Caldwell, and Katherine Kennedy.

On Award Day the following people received major honors: Henry Goodman, the Balfour award; Anita Hallmark and Creed Hoodenpyle, the Alumni Awards; J. T. Richie, the Ochs-Oakes Award; David Hill, S. A. R.; Anita Hallmark, D. A. R.; Anne Cole, Science Award and Tom Caldwell the Sophomore Achievement Award. Anne Cole, the fourth student in the history of C. H. S. to maintain a straight "A" record, was elected valedictorian of the class by the faculty. Later the class elected Frank Fuller, top-ranking boy in the class, salutatorian.

Other enjoyable features of our senior year were Stunt Nite and Senior Day. On Senior Day Fannie Mae Gladish, dressed as a Red Cross First Aid class victim, and Charles Martin, as "Charlie's Aunt," were the prize winners.

Since we entered High School as sophomores, we have made friends both among the students and faculty. Honest work brings with it a sense of satisfaction, a sense of achievement. If we, the class of '42, have achieved, and we believe we have, then much of our success is due to our capable sponsors, Mrs. Price and Mrs. Dalton, who have helped us through our trials and tribulations. We are especially grateful to Mr. Bates, Mr. Selcer, and to the other members of the faculty for guiding us through the intricate processes of acquiring knowledge.

Class Prophecy

By RIP VAN ALEXANDER

Have you ever been asked to write a class prophecy before? No? Well, believe me, it's no cinch. I was to have this prophecy written by a certain Monday, and it was already Friday afternoon. A quiet place to work was needed and, after a moment's thought, I remembered our fine stadium. Nothing ever happens there to disturb the peace and quiet. I soon put my thoughts into action, and half an hour later saw me stretched at full length on the smooth green turf of the football field. The birds twittered; the bugs chirped; all was peaceful. Vaguely, I was conscious that I had retired to the field for a reason; but I was soon lulled into sweet sleep by the pleasant sounds of nature.

A deafening racket beat upon my eardrums painfully. It sounded somewhat like a newsboy yelling the headlines. With great trouble I sat up and was immediately struck by the changed appearance of the field. Once smooth, it was now covered by briars and brambles. The noise ceased; and its origin, a ratty-looking lad of about ten, weighted down by a pack of newspapers, was examining me curiously. I noticed that he found something queer about my clothing. I was surprised to find that they had become faded and moulded, which was strange, as they had been all right when I had lain down. I looked up the boy, who surprisingly looked a great deal like my friend Bill Fuller, and tried to find some explanation for this remarkable situation. He offered none, but said that as I was evidently in need of new "duds," he would fix me up at his pop's office, which was just across the way.

I gathered that I had slept for a great length of time; for near the school where once a humble cow pasture was, stood an imposing structure, The Second National Bank; and, according to the large bronze plaque mounted beside the marble portals, the president was my friend, Jon McBeth. Roy Winn, Tom Stewart, Jack Powell, Kenneth Ray, and Joe Mayo were on the board of directors. The kid led me inside where the elevator boy, Carlton Renegar, informed him that his father was in his office. We soon arrived in a crowded reception room over the door of which was printed in large gold letters, "William Fuller Detective Agency." We were admitted to the private office where Bill himself sat playing dominoes with his secretary, Lillian Jones.

After a short talk with Bill, I found that I had slept for some fifteen years and was all of 32 years old. Gee! How tempus does fugit. Amazed, I sank into an easy chair and scanned a newspaper given me by young Fuller from his ample supply. Large headlines caught my eye. Felix Truss held in county jail for hawking lollipops without a license. He refuses to speak till he contacts his attorney, John Caldwell. Patrolman Arnold Beyer stated that he caught Truss selling lollipops to Bettye Jean Clift and Jayn Allison in front of the Ed West Beauty Salon on Market Street. This was confirmed by witnesses Rosemary Mashburn, Marie Myatt, Isabel Luper, and Jimmie Hodges. District Attorney Thomas Barr said that Truss would probably be released on account of friendship with Criminal Court Judge William Oliphant. Happy to see my old friends' names in the news, I skipped to the sports page where I read that Anne Lauter had captured the female parchesi championship title over stiff competition put up by Martha Bell Miller, Ruth Denton, and Dot Schoolfield. Hugh James and Robert Norris are scheduled to battle it out for the men's singles championship in pro tennis. That ought to be a hot game. Glancing down these columns, I saw that running heavyweight-boxer, Harry Luper, is challenging the present champ, Bobby Venable, to a title bout next week. Bob, early in his career, wrested the title from the aged Joe Louis* who had held it till then. Billy Carroll broke the record for the 5-mile dash last Saturday before a crowd of thousands at Hoodenpyle Stadium. It seems that this year Creed is managing the Chattanooga Pink Sox and has high hopes for a successful season as his team is made up of such stars as Jack Hamilton, Alton Davenport, Loren Williams, and Frank Fuller.

On the editorial page I was thrilled by a stirring article by the famous columnist, Henry Goodman. In this article he puts forth many convincing arguments for longer lunch hours for workers in baby carriage factories.

As I skimmed over the society section, I noted that Betty McGaughy, the star of the famous radio serial, "Molly Malone, Girl Sandhog," was married this morning to Ed McConnell, who is the announcer on Betty's program. Acting as maids of honor were Rosemary Goode and Betty Burger; Rebecca Atchley, Iva Conley, Betty Sue Evans, Mabel Flowers, Betty Doss, and Martha Green were bridesmaids.

Suddenly the door to the office opened and in rushed Gilbert Humphries in a great uproar over the theft of his Model T. Detective Fuller decided to begin investigation immediately, and he invited me to come along. Hailing a taxi driven by Ted Kopkin, we soon arrived at the Betty Jane Underwood School of the Dance where Gilbert had left his car during his rhumba lesson from Betty Jane and her capable assistants, Lillian Thompson and DeCosta Smith. Nothing is left of the car but the tires, which, Fuller says, are considered worthless these days because of the plentifulness of rubber. Fuller picked up several suspicious looking characters about the scene of the crime; they turned out to be George Vess, Lawrence Smith, and Hubert Hatfield. We finally found the lost auto reposing in a place of honor at the McWhorter Museum of Ancient History. It came out that Tinker, on spying the valuable museum piece, had, for fear of losing it, carted it off immediately to the distinguished institution which bears his name. It now rests, sharing the honor of the oldest car, with Tinker's own.

As we felt hungry, Bill and I dropped into the Hartman Coffee Shoppe to grab a bite to eat. There we saw Robert Denham, who is campaigning for the position of justice of the peace, supported by his loyal henchmen John Hampton, Fred Martin, Ed Morris, Joe Spector, and Louis Hudson (not to be confused with the former Louise Hudson, now Mrs. J. Kirkpatrick, wife of the famous arctic explorer, J. Q. Kirkpatrick.) It is fairly certain that Denham will win over Kenneth Ray, his opponent, as he is supported by the notorious Moseley & Mosely machine, which seems to have been in control around these parts for some time. We were served a delightful meal by Doris Roberts, the waitress, who informed us that the chef, Bob Walraven, asked us to search carefully in our cheese soufflé for his cuff links, which had dropped off during its preparation.

After eating, we paid the bill to Vernon Wheeler, the cashier and then decided to see the current stage show and movie, playing at the Lowry Theater, which featured Max O'Menuskin and his Irish playboys. The usher, Martin Orr, found us front-row seats where we were entertained by a chorus of beautiful girls including our old friends Betty Harris, Anita Hallmark, Kathleen Ellicott, Mary Jo Hays, and Pauline Broome. Those two hilarious comedians, George Ackley and Bob Bogart, next sent us rolling in the aisles with their amusing jokes and antics. Anita McBrayer honored us with a jazzy song, followed by a group of tumblers including Joseph Wild, Sam Struen, James Harwood, Bill Graham, Howard Spiva, and Ellington Lancaster. Suddenly there was a splintering crash; we looked up and saw that an airplane had crashed through the roof of the theater. The door opened and Graham Betts crawled out, a bewildered look on his face, "Gee, this isn't the airport, is it?" Slightly injured by the falling plane were Martha Perry, Ann Massey, Bunzie Hickey, Betty Margaret Ripley, Jack Gamble, Charles Duesler, Jean Hedges, and Charles Comer. After the debris was shoveled away, the show continued. Featured in the main attraction was that glamorous star, Alicia Falmer, playing opposite that colorful casanova, Tyrone Caldwell. They were supported by a brilliant cast including Betty Abeel, Miles Melvin, Beatrice Hardy, Margaret Mauney, Bill Lentz, Julius Hudson, and Helen Millard.

After the show, we dropped in at Luckadoo's juke-joint for a hamburger. We were served by that dude, Charlie Martin, who was wearing a violet colored suit and green suede shoes. I recognized some of the waitresses as Edith Wright, Jessie Mason, Marilyn Marterre, Marian Harris, and Lucy Heggie. Charlie tried to sell us chances on a bicycle which was being given away by the Vess Velocipede Company. We decided to call it a day as Bill had an appointment with his dentist, Glenn Kleineau.

I spent the night at the Hanlin Hotel where the manager, Ed Sherlin, made me comfortable. In the lobby I saw David Wey, who's running a beauty college, with several of his instructors. They were Yvonne Young, Beverly Wood, Betty Norrell, Marian Newton, Betty Ann Morrison, Hazel Miller and Elaine Hughes.

Next morning I got up bright and early in order to be at the airport for the first plane leaving for Washington. I had decided to get a look at the progress of the nation during the fifteen years I had slept. Behind the ticket window in the airline office was Charles Morse, who told me that my old friends, Louise Gothard, Alice Clark, Marjorie Rennick, Dot Skiles, Betty Mcser, Don Hon, June Heaton, and Robert Fehn were traveling in the same plane with me. Soon the great airship arrived and we piled in. The hostess, Jean Hart, tucked us in and made us comfortable. I was pleasantly surprised that the pilot was none other than John Ellington with Dudley Goodson as co-pilot. After a pleasant journey we noticed that the plane had begun to circle for a landing. Albert Eakin, who was peddling peanuts among the passengers, informed us that we had arrived at the Washington field. A stocky chap who had sat across the aisle unnoticed during the whole journey prepared to disembark. First carefully tucking a fat brief case under his arm, he had started down the steps when I recognized him to be Robert Myers, junior senator from Tennessee. He had acquired a beautiful tan on the beaches of Florida under the watchful eye of life-guard Bob Whitmore, so he said.

A great crowd had gathered at the airport to meet Senator Myers. I was happy to see many familiar faces in the throng. There were Betty Alexander, Betty Epperson, Bob Robinson, Katherine Woodruff, John Ellis, Sally Lutz, Ira Pinkerton, Ralph Randle, Elizabeth Howard, and Sam Conner, all holding good Federal jobs in the senator's office. Koula Vlasits, Doris Powell, Evelyn Hail, Ann Harris, and Ann Hipp had come to get the autographs of the glamorous movie actor, Jerry "Errol Flynn" Harper, who was arriving on a later plane. I was whisked to my hotel on a bus driven by Frank Gardner, who informed me that "Stamping Susie" was a sure-fire winner in the afternoon races. "Susie" is one of the fine string of race horses owned by millionaire playboy, J. T. Richie. At the hotel desk Clerk Bob Nicholson told me that the world-famous Max Gordon's Circus was in town and to be sure not to miss it. This seemed a good idea, so 8 o'clock found me at the circus. First I visited the freak tent where Wild Man Loren Watson was having his fingernails manicured by Zoot Soot, the alligator girl, who looked suspiciously like Doris Pope. The lion-tamer, Stokes Christians, introduced me to his fiercest lion, who in the midst of his ferocious growling, suddenly broke down and asked me for a cigarette. The lion's voice sounded strangely familiar; it was that of my old friend, David Arnold. Proceeding on into the big top, I was stopped by a blast from the circus band, announcing the bareback riders. These turned out to be Betty Williams, Bernice Smith, Lois Hiener, Betty Moore, Ida Freedman, Sarah Collier, and Margaret Hodges. At this time Jack Cawood, Bill Price, Robert Orrell, Lamar Kitchens, Tom Martin, and the other lads in the band swung out on "Roll Out the Barrel," upon which clowns, Bob Cousar, John Ensign, Bill Barker, and Frank Tallent gamboled out and went through their usual antics. Just as tight-rope-walker, John Goins, completed a triple loop-the-loop fifty feet above our heads, the crowd's eyes were turned to some kind of disturbance taking place high in the grandstand. Upon closer investigation, I saw what had caused the trouble. Morton Taylor had taken an all day sucker away from David Hill, and Policemen M. L. Thach and Bill Stewart were having some trouble separating them. Chuckling, I turned to watch the trapeze artists, Nancy Smothermon, Anne Cole, Mary Zelia Hardy, and Fred Pardue, thrilling all with their daring stunts. Having had enough of the circus, I stumbled out into the night.

In the subway I ran into my old flame, Mary Edith Gregory. Surprised to find that she was still single, I suggested that we drop by Bill O'Donoghue's French Restaurant to discuss old times. At the restaurant we played the juke box, hearing with pleasure Walter Horsley and his band playing "Deep in the Heart of South Dakota." We turned on a radio and got in on a novel broadcast. World-famous female deep-sea diver, Mary Louise Thrasher, was fishing for electric eels in the deep water off the Fiji Islands and describing her progress over the air through a mike built in her helmet. Tiring of this exciting broadcast, we decided to call it an evening, and I deposited Mary Edith in time for her rehearsal at the Metropolitan Opera where she is at present appearing. Mary Edith turns the pages for the violinist, Margaret Ann Smith, in the Met orchestra. I paused for a moment to hear the golden tones of Charles Rogers, Metropolitan's star tenor, and then decided to call it a day.

After spending a delightful week roaming the countryside, I turned again toward home. Boarding the famed Chattanooga Choo-Choo, I was soon moving on my way. On the train I fell in with a girls' hockey team which was scheduled to play in Chattanooga all the next week. They were Sarah Blaylock, Edith Allen, Ruby Newton, Dorothy Sir, Thelma Sargent, Marguerite Smith, Willadeen Thornbury, Opal McGiboney, and Georgella Mankin. The girls were under the expert training of their manager, Charles Kupfer.

Before long, our train pulled into the station and just as I was stepping off, I slipped on a banana peel and crashed to the sidewalk. When I woke I was in a snazzy ambulance driven at a breakneck speed by George Collier while nurses Mary Jane Giles and Margie Mantooth were taking my pulse and giving me a blood test. At the Eisenstein Sanitarium where I had been carried, Dr. Wert Pearson gave me a thorough examination, ably assisted by internes Gene Arlidge, Bill Alexander, Claude Dobbs, Bob Hampton, and A. W. Padgett. Dr. Pearson decided, after a lengthy discussion with head surgeon, Dr. Herschel Coplan, to operate immediately for a misplaced liver. It was only after a great deal of talk that I persuaded them I was perfectly O. K.

I finally got home in a somewhat nervous condition. I was just sinking happily into the arms of Morpheus when the door bell rang. As I opened the door, Wesley King immediately began to demonstrate a new brand of flea soap on himself. So persistent was Mr. King that I could get rid of him only by buying six dozen bars of his soap. As I staggered back to my bed, practically a nervous wreck, the phone jangled. It was Ramon Solomon demanding to speak to Eleanor Alexander, and no amount of argument on my part would convince him that he had the wrong number. Completely exhausted, I had a total collapse. It was back to the sanitarium for me with a serious case of sprained cerebellum. My short stay in 1957 had been quite enough for me, and I went to sleep that night grimly determined to dream myself back to good old 1942.
